THIS WEEK WE'RE OBSESSED WITH...

RIXO

If summer 2016 was all about Self Portrait, and it really was, then prepare to get really rablly riled up about Rixo. In approx three months' time.

Born from the brains of ex-ASOS buyers Henrietta Rix and Orlagh McCloskey – Rixo gives GREAT style – think swathes of higgledy-piggledy prints with a serious 70s twist.

Championed by professional clotheshorse Millie Mackintosh, Rixo hype has been modestly gaining momentum since the summer, yet – in the words of Martine McCutcheon (kinda) – spring 2017 is set to be Rixo's perfect moment with the launch of neck scarves, bikinis and, due to customer demand, a new range of vintage accessories. Which is why you'll need to work/shop fast.

Anyone who played 'Spot The Self Portrait' drinking games at a wedding last year will know how important it is to wear the It dress first. Whether you're wedding-bound, barbecue-bound or invite-pending, Rixo's wares offer just the right amount of waft to keep you looking cool all year long.

Team yours with block knee-highs while your legs are still furry, then bare feet come summer – smug in the knowledge that you've already won at 2017.

Should you need any further incentive, you still have 93-ish days to save up – and probs approx 41 days before the high street pays homage.

Ah go on, do it. Before she does.

Zara's New ZSA ZSA ZSU

After months of refreshing the 'New In' section, our prayers have finally been answered: Zara's SS17 collection has dropped

✿ WORDS: HANNAH BANKS-WALKER

As disciples of the high street, the turn of the season marks a particularly exciting point in time for us; that moment when the last of the sales fade away to make room for the new collections. We try to remain focused as we stalk the shops on behalf of you all, but occasionally there's no concealing our infatuation with certain collections.

This season, we thought we'd already earmarked our top pieces from our favourite stores; that is until Zara SS17 dropped. Oh, Zara. From the bold colour combos (bright red and fuchsia is utter perfection) to cashmere for less than £90 and prints so perfect they'll make your entire being yearn for their graphic blooms and painterly floral patterns.

There are sequin tees, bodysuits with tulle puff sleeves, flared-hem jeans, pleated skirts. There are embroidered mules, high-waisted trousers, gingham blouses and beautifully embroidered coats. And oh, the bags! Leather totes in dandelion hues, beaded minaudières, city bags in dusky greys and even cross-bodies with interchangeable designs.

As if that wasn't enough, Zara's new campaign has been shot by legendary fashion photographer Steven Meisel, capturing pieces from the collection that drops in March – think off-duty ballerinas in Bardot knits and flowing skirts. It is, to be quite honest, everything we think our wardrobes deserve. And if that isn't reason enough to go shopping, we're not sure what is.

Love Yourself LIPSTICKS

Pretty and empowering, we've found our No 1 Galentine's gift

At a time when maintaining female empowerment is top of Look's agenda, Hourglass cosmetics has launched Girl, a lipstick line that delivers a message of its own. Not only does the collection of 20 have some amazing nude, bright and balmy lippies, they also have the most inspiring, powerful names.

And the best part? Hourglass has initiated a social media movement that encourages us to celebrate ourselves and all the other #GirlBoss women in our lives. All you need to do is head to girlforgood.com and upload a photo of yourself or your chosen gal pal using the hashtag #GirlForGood. Then choose one of the 20 inspiring Girl shade names to stamp across the image and give your pal (or yourself!) a reminder of just how awesome they really are.

Yes, it's a small step but anything that reminds us how strong we are is a move in the right direction as far as Look is concerned. So unleash your inner leader, as there's never been a better time to give your pout – and your mindset – added clout.

DIOR DREAMS

(Do Come True)

Maria Grazia Chiuri's collection has gone viral. Thankfully, the high street is here to satisfy our designer cravings

* HANNAH BANKS-WALKER
@HBANKSWALKER

Raf Simons left some pretty big shoes to fill when he resigned from his post as Dior's creative director in late 2015. He left the fashion house in the hands of the design team while the search continued for a new helmsman. Or woman, as the case came to be. Last July, it was announced that Maria Grazia Chiuri would leave Valentino for the job, making her the first ever female creative director of Dior. And her first collection for SS17 didn't disappoint.

From her overtly feminist message communicated on slogan tees to the Calvin Klein-esque waistbands stamped with Dior branding, this is Christian Dior for the Insta generation. If you're desperate to join the club, the high street already has some excellent ways for you to nail the look now. The Dior dream is closer than you think...

THE SLOGAN TEE

Dior's 'We Should All Be Feminists' T-shirt was worn proudly by Natalie Portman when she joined women on the worldwide march against Trump.

THE TULLE SKIRT

Law stole our hearts when she teamed a celestial blue tulle skirt with a matching jumper. Follow her lead and pair M&S's offering with a tucked-in knit.

THE CORSET EFFECT

We're not advocating the return of the dreaded corset, but Zara's top gives the illusion of wearing one (ie the lace-up detail). Plus, it's a dead ringer for OP's Dior.
Top, £19.99, Zara

THE DENIM DRESS

Bella Hadid's midi is all we can think about. While we're yet to find a bustier denim frock with glitter straps on the high street, Miss S's version will help you channel Bella's vibes.

A LOVE LETTER TO Microfoliant

Dermalogica's just dropped its new Daily Superfoliant, which promises to protect skin from pollution. Whatever sorcery it contains, Look Designer Megan is hooked...

✱ WORDS: MEGAN PENFOLD @MFORMEGANDRAWS

Like most superfans, I remember my first time using Dermalogica. I was 15 and suffering from full-blown, unapologetic acne. It was painful, it was humiliating and it made those tricky teenage years even harder to navigate. After trying almost everything (and I mean everything) I booked a facial. And then another. Before long, I had my very own beauty therapist (fancy) who swore by, and only used, Dermalogica products. From the moment it touched my skin, I was hooked. It reduced redness and helped with the acne scarring. And the smell! It's like nothing you've smelt before; kind of like a mix between a spa, lavender and heaven. And that goes for all the brand's products.

While I thought my heart belonged to the Daily Microfoliant, there now exists a brand new Daily Superfoliant and, well, I'm torn. You use it just like a normal exfoliator but let me tell you, it's anything but ordinary. It contains charcoal and red algae, which work to detoxify the skin, helping prevent the ageing effects of pollution. As you may have heard, our levels of air pollution in the UK have increased dramatically of late, so the fact that Dermalogica is helping ensure that I don't wake up with the face of a ghou really does help me sleep at night. I know it's expensive, but after suffering so much with my skin, I'm conscious of what I put on it.

It touched my skin and I was hooked

Dermalogica doesn't use anything artificial and there's no animal testing involved, which both help me justify the cost. Also, your skin is your body's largest organ, so why wouldn't you invest in it? Yes, yes, I am a Dermalogica superfan, but this is one new launch I just HAD to shout about!

Daily Superfoliant, £55, Dermalogica

Zebra

CROSSING

Animal print will always win, but this season real style lies in zebra stripes

* WORDS: BRIDIE WILKINS
@BRIDIEWILKINS

Correct us if we're wrong but we'd bet our wardrobes that you own some snake or leopard print. And we're right there with you. Whether you make it the focal point of your OOTD or complete your look with an accessory or two, animal print is a shortcut to an instant glam-over.

You'll be pleased to hear, then, that there's yet another to choose from: zebra. Topshop Unique set the ball rolling with the statement stripes that graced its AW17 catwalk and since then it's gone mega.

Street stylers, celebs and, ahem, Look staff are all wearing it and now (hurrah for the high street!) you can too. Stick to Wallis's monochrome for a sophisticated take on the trend, or brave a bolder look with Warehouse's standout midi dress. Either way, it's hard to resist this jungle fever.

10 Make-Up Mistakes

TO AVOID ON A FIRST DATE

Meeting a potential new love match is nerve-wracking enough without worrying whether your make-up is letting you down. Here's how to win at first date beauty...

1 Sticky Gloss

A softer shade of lipstick or a velvety stain is easier to wear and less likely to end up all over your face/teeth. Or his face/teeth.

1 Burt's Bees Lipstick in Blush Basin, £9.99
2 Burberry Liquid Lip Velvet in Fawn 05, £26

2 Heavy Foundation

Thick foundation will draw attention to any imperfections. Instead, try a sheer lightweight foundation, buffed flawlessly into the skin.

3 Hourglass Foundation Brush, £42
4 Bourjois Healthy Mix Foundation, £9.99

3 High Intensity Blush

Swerve punchy pink blusher in favour of a natural peachy shade worn on the apples of the cheeks.

5 Laura Mercier Windflush Colour Powder For Cheeks & Eyes, £29
6 Urban Decay 8-Hour Powder Blush in Indecent, £19

4 Flaky Mascara †

Chuck out your old mascara—it'll only let you down. Invest in a new budge-proof one to boost lashes without any risk of smudging.

7 Rimmel Scandal' Eyes Reloaded Mascara, £6.99
8 YSL The Shock Volumizing Mascara, £23

5 Scary OTT Nails †

One way to terrify first dates (and small children) is to rock up with talons Cruella de Vil would be proud of. Keep 'em natural.

6 Panda Eyeliner †

How's your date going to gaze adoringly into your gorgeous eyes if they're rimmed with thick, smudgy Avril Lavigne-style liner?

7 Skipping Powder †

Use a breathable mineral powder to mop up oil, tricking him into thinking you're as cool as a cucumber.

9 Estée Lauder Matte Perfecting Primer, £25
10 bareMinerals Mineral Veil Powder, £21

8 Oompa Loompa Tan †

Never fake tan the night before! The smell lingers in pores and there's no time to hide mistakes. Gradually get your glow on three days before.

11 St Tropez Gradual Tan Plus Sculpt And Glow, £18
12 James Read Sleep Mask Tan Body, £35

9 Mega False Lashes †

Unless you're a member of the Geordie Shore household, wearing super-heavy falsies on a first date is best avoided.

10 Trying Out A New Scent †

Will it last? What if you hate it after an hour? Stick to a tried and tested fave—you'll feel so much more confident.

A N O D E T O T H E Kitten Heel

THERESA MAY

Putting her career and credibility on the line, Fashion News Editor Maxine Eggenberger reveals why we should reconsider the kitten heel

*MAXINE EGGENBERGER @MAXFASHEDITOR

Let's get one thing straight; I've never met a shoe I didn't like. OK, so it might've taken Christopher Kane (and a cluster of crystals) to maketh me a Crocs convert, but my point still stands: even the most polarising style can be appreciated, if not for its form then for its function, by the most discerning shoe aficionado. Saying that, I understand some shoes still divide opinion. Dr Martens are by no means for everyone. Neither are corset-laced, knee-high sandals. However, there's no shoe that's made headlines of late quite like the kitten heel. A by-product of the 80s, the micro stiletto has been thrown back into the spotlight thanks to none other than our very own PM Theresa May, whose penchant for the heel has sparked debate among trade unions, political correspondents and the fashion jury alike. I myself have faced prejudice against the kitten heel. The year was 2014, and Zara's bow-toed offerings were never off my feet. One day, a supposed friend jibed: 'My nan wouldn't wear those if I bribed her with Victoria sponge.' To that, I posed the question: 'What did they ever do to you?' At least, I would have if I hadn't been crying in the loos. I'm 100 per cent certain that I'm exaggerating but, in my trauma, this is how I remember this exchange. Well, unnamed 'friend', maybe your nan wouldn't be so quick to dismiss them now Céline has ushered them in as the shoe of the season. And no one disputes Céline. Just ask the high street, whose homage is spread far and wide – from Wallis to Topshop to Marks & Spencer. Mansur Gavriel (the label responsible for 2016's mule obsession) has given them its footwear Midas touch for SS17 in every shade. Also, it's not often I can say that one of the hottest trends of the moment also happens to be practical, but that's exactly what I'm saying. It's just the way the Vicky sponge crumbles.

1 Boots, £45.99, Zara 2 Shoes, £345, Mansur Gavriel 3 Shoes, £52, Topshop 4 Shoes, £38, Wallis 5 Shoes, £42, Next 6 Boots, £75, Marks & Spencer

WHAT TO WEAR...

In The Rain

It might be pouring, but your rain gear needn't be boring. In fact, this little lot could well have you longing for wet weather...

You did it! You made it through the thick of winter (*touches wood*) and spring showers are finally here. OK, so we might be getting a little ahead of ourselves here, but if the past week is anything to go by, we're expecting more wet weather. Deciding what to wear, then, is only going to get harder.

The solution? #LWTW. Yep, thanks to you guys, we've plenty of rainproof-outfit inspo. Try a bold vinyl trench for a sleek look in the evenings, or a padded puffa on the weekend. Rain never looked so good.

ANGELINA 'NEXT!'

It's been a rocky start to the year, but Ange is sticking to her plan to put all the negativity of the past behind her...

Hanging out with her six children while spending time in California this week, Angelina Jolie looked to be in better spirits than we've seen in months. As Look previously reported, the 41-year-old's been focusing on moving on with her personal life and career – and 2017 is finally shaping up to be the year she wants it to be.

We can't help but think she deserves it after recent stresses, which have seen her undergoing preventative cancer surgery as well as splitting with Brad Pitt. But following a backlash from fans and former Hollywood stars, who appeared to side with Brad after their split, we're told she's moved on and is feeling positive. And it might just have something to do with the divorce battle moving onwards, her plans to stay in the UK, a big career boost and the new man she's been talking to...

HER NEW FRIENDS

While Ange has been leaning on ex-husband Billy Bob Thornton and close friend Johnny Depp, our sources reveal that her current smiley exterior is all down to a fresh union with reported former fling Jared Leto, 45. 'It's all new to her,' a pal reveals. 'But spending time with someone she can trust has given her that confidence boost

We'd love Jared to be our knight in shining armour too...

she's needed. Jared's a great guy and he's really been a huge support to her.'

Not only that, but the two also have many shared philanthropic interests. In 2015, Jared gave a passionate speech at the American Music Awards about accepting refugees – 'The entire world matters and peace is possible,' he said – and Angelina is special envoy for the refugee agency UNHCR. 'They have so much in common,' adds another source. 'It's really refreshing and they're very passionate about continuing to help the cause, especially in the current climate.'

She's been talking to Jared Leto

THE DIVORCE BATTLE

In September, Angelina 'blindsided' her husband of 11 years by filing for divorce, citing 'unreasonable behaviour' as the cause, and she and Brad have since been involved in a very public spat. Ange was accused of 'drawing blood' first, by releasing a public statement in October that said that her decision to file was for 'the health of the family', prompting Brad to release an opposing statement saying he was 'saddened by the news' and he wanted to focus on his children's well-being. What followed was an FBI investigation into the actor, which resulted in him not seeing his children over Christmas and a standing ovation when he presented an award at the Golden Globes last month.

However, Brad and Ange have made huge leaps since last year. Last month they had agreed to seal their court documents and discuss their divorce privately – something our sources tell us Brad was desperate for. Of course, it doesn't mean that the drama is over for good. Brad's set to start promoting his new film War Machine, where he'll be doing interviews and possibly addressing his former marriage – something Ange is very concerned about.

But our insiders have also revealed that the pair have plans to finalise the entire situation by April. 'She's not looking forward to it,' adds another source. 'But it's moving in the right direction and that's all she wants now: a clean break.'

THE BIG MOVE

We're told that Brad and Ange have agreed to keep their French residence for their children and have will have a house in Loz Feliz, California, where Ange will stay with the little ones when they're in town. This year, Angelina will be temporarily relocating to the UK to film Maleficent 2 as well as taking up her role as a visiting professor for a master's course at the London School of Economics. 'The fact that Brad and Ange have thrashed out a deal about anything at all is a real move forward,' says a pal.

Brad got a great reception at the Golden Globes

Things are looking

THE CAREER KICKSTART

Ange is going to be very busy with the release of her Netflix original film First They Killed My Father: A Daughter Of Cambodia Remembers later this year. She's also been chosen to front the campaign for new perfume Mon Guerlain as its 'icon of perfumes'. Angelina has revealed she'll donate her fee for the campaign to charity.

BUT, IT'S NOT ALL PLAIN SAILING...

Last week Angelina's dad, actor Jon Voight, professed his support for the new US government and condemned the Women's March, calling it 'no good'. While Angelina has remained quiet on the subject, we're told she will respond in time. 'She's been preoccupied with the divorce but she has plenty to say on the subject,' says a friend.

We sat Binky down for a chat abo

Er, how much has Binky Felstead's life changed in the past few months? Following a Made In Chelsea series full of drama (with her on-off relationship with 27-year-old Josh Patterson causing an SW3 war), the star shocked everyone last month by announcing that she's expecting the first Made In Chelsea baby this summer. But now the news is very much out there and the entire MIC cast are rallying around ('seriously, they're all giving me advice even though no one has had a baby!'), we wanted to know who's going to be doing most of the babysitting and of course, how Binky, 26, will switch up her chic look to accommodate her bump. With her new In The Style 'Western Rose' collection about to drop, she assures us she's got pregnancy dressing sorted.

Hi Binky, congratulations! How are you adjusting to your baby body?

I've only got a little bump so I'm just feeling a bit bloated and a bit chubby at the moment. I'm enjoying my new boobs, but apart from that I've been pretty lucky so far – I've had no morning sickness. I've been able to get out of bed and go to the gym. So far so good, but I don't want to jinx it!

Some celebs, like Cheryl, opt to keep quiet about any speculation. Was it important for you to tell your fans?

I couldn't have held it in any longer. I'd

Kim K: 'IT'S WAR!'

Bey's well-timed news has caused havoc in the Kardashian household

While Bey's baby news excited just about everyone last week, it hasn't impressed Kim Kardashian West, who's told friends she's 'furious' about being upstaged by the singer yet again.

Bey, who hadn't been seen in public since 4 November, revealed she's expecting twins – in what's now the most-liked Instagram picture ever – on first day of Black History month, days before last weekend's Grammys and ahead of the Super Bowl. Slay, Bey. Slay.

But the news came days after Kim, 36, revealed her plans for a kids clothing line with hubby Kanye, due summer 2017. When one user asked if she would get pregnant in time for the range, Kim coyly replied with a 'hands-up' emoji, seeming to confirm it. The reality star was even spotted at a prenatal clinic in January, which has fuelled the speculation.

'Kim loves babies,' says our insider. 'Being around her brother Rob's little one has made her desperate for another to smooth things over after Kanye's recent struggles. She was timing it perfectly and Beyonce's ruined it. She's raging.' Uh-oh, watch out Bey!

WHY WE LOVE BEY'S SNAPS

Beyonce's stunning shoot was created by US artist Awol Erizku. She's mostly naked, adorned with fresh flowers and body paint like some sort of ethereal goddess, with the caption: 'I have three hearts'. In the Instagram announcement photo, she posed with a green veil, which might represent fertility. And could the mismatched underwear indicate a boy and a girl are on the way?

rather fans knew through me rather than some article with wrong information. It was important for us to do it because there were so many ways that people could find out.

Have you changed the way you dress?

No, all my dresses cater to the bump and a big meal, a food baby. The only thing I've had to change is my jeans – I'm already in maternity jeans. I'm going to be wearing them after the baby is born if I have a Sunday roast! As I get bigger, I'm not sure I'll be wearing so many minidresses. In The Style are making the dresses a bit longer – I've told them they have to be.

Are your followers quite vocal about what they want from your range?

Yes! I get lots of Instagram comments and try to cater to my fans. When people said: 'We want larger sizes,' I made sure most of my range went into the curve collection. Is it more important to be comfortable than stylish these days? Comfy but chic.

£34.99, InTheStyle

Still elegant, though – I'm still a young mum! I think it's cool to stay in normal clothes for as long as possible.

Do you have a celebrity style inspo?

I prefer bloggers and Instagrammers. I think Kristin Cavallari [from The Hills] had really good pregnancy style. I'm not sure whether I should cover the bump [with fitted dresses] or hide it. Mark Francis told me to hide it!

What?!

[Laughs] I think he meant that I don't have to wear really fitted things over the bump all the time. I'll do a bit of both.

Has anyone else offered you advice?

Lots of people have advice, whether I want it or not. The only advice I'm listening to is my mother's.

You're going to be the big storyline on the next series of Made In Chelsea...

Hopefully it will be chilled. It's a big change but I think there won't be any drama for Josh and me now because we have a glorious little gift coming. Everyone's been so supportive.

Will she be very spoiled?

No, not spoiled – I don't do spoiled. I don't mind my friends giving gifts and spoiling her though! [Laughs]

The DA QUEST You Sh Be As

Do you feel like you're not right? Maybe you're a

Sunday nights, for many of us, are spent hopelessly trawling through Bumble/Tinder/Happn, desperately trying to figure out if Ben who has the vague discipline of 'IT' is really attractive or only in that one grainy selfie he's taken in his mum's bathroom. But even if you're in a relationship, cast your mind back and think about what you asked each other at the very start – maybe there's something you wish you'd known then (like that bad toenail clipping habit)? With Tinder alone claiming to have over 50 million users worldwide, half the battle is finding common ground with a perfect stranger and weeding out the ones who are no match at all – hopefully in as few messages as possible.

Now, we can't say this is a definitive science – sometimes there are no rules, or those that totally defy them – but if you think your Tinder small talk might be a little stagnant, then this feature is most definitely for you. We asked the UK's top dating gurus (and a few opinionated members of the Look team) to tell us what they think we should be asking potential suitors... Hey, it can't hurt, right?

'What Are Three Things On Your Bucket List?'

Amélie Guerard, head of matchmaking at dating app Once

"Try asking something that makes them think about themselves in a positive way rather than an interrogation. One of the things I suggest to my clients is: "What are three things on your bucket list?" Don't say "top three", so as to allow your date to leave out things they might be shy about, yet you can deduce if someone's a traveller, adventurous or perhaps is really naughty by their answer."

'Seeing how a person speaks about their mother is very revealing. Are they respectful? Are they close to their family? Would you potentially be spending all of your time with their family on holidays, or can you jet off to Fiji together?'

'What's Your Ideal Weekend?'

Caroline Brealey, founder of matchmaking site mutualattraction.co.uk

'I would say it's important to ask a question that's meaningful to you, so if you're into music try: "What's your desert island disc?" If you're sporty, something like: "What's the ultimate challenge you would love to tackle one day?" would be appropriate.'

'What Do You Look For In A Partner?'

Jo Barnett, dating coach from datingcoach.me.uk

'It's important to ask this because you need to hear and listen to who this person is, rather than who you want them to be. You're listening for shared values and common goals and taking your time to really get to know the person, rather than jumping in on emotions or raw attraction. This is what creates lasting success.'

LUISA OMIELAN INTERVIEW

Luisa

'I Love Doing Comedy – And Getting Drunk With My Fans'

Comedian Luisa Omielan talks to Look's Lucy Devine about dressing like a granny, online trolls and her army of protective followers

Luisa Omielan is one of those people you immediately like. Sitting across from me at London's Soho House, she's telling me about her attempts at a no-sugar diet, teaching me how to tie my hair in a bun without using a mirror and exchanging Airbnb stories – the good, the bad and the terrifying (think stranger standing at the side of

Luisa's nod to her breakout hit show your bed at 3am). Ordering a peppermint tea (she'd usually have a coffee with two sugars) she's wearing a baseball cap with pompoms and contemplating the tricky topic of hat-at-the-table etiquette.

Luisa launched onto the comedy scene in 2012 with her debut show What Would Beyoncé Do?! It achieved critical acclaim and sold out around the world – along with her follow-up Am I Right Ladies?! Down to earth and hilarious, she's amounted an army of fiercely loyal fans. It's easy to see why. Tackling issues like heartbreak, body image and anxiety with brutal honesty, there's no one else like Luisa. She dances with fans, hosts Valentine's Day parties and always says yes to a selfie. In one of her most famous gags, known as the 'thigh gap', Luisa pulls down her trousers and rants about the pressures of body image. The joke went viral and has since had over 40 million views.

With What Would Beyoncé Do?! set to air on BBC Three this

Valentine's Day, Luisa answers Look's most pressing questions – including those rumours about all night parties with her audience...

Did you make any New Year's resolutions and have you stuck to them?

I'm still having pasta and bread, but normally I'd have a dessert after every meal – I really overdose on sugar, so I'm just not doing that. I was supposed to be doing it until Thursday, but yesterday I had a really sweet dinner followed by ice cream – I just thought, f**k it!

Congratulations on filming *What Would Beyoncé Do?! You must be so excited – has it been a long hard slog to get here?

Oh my God, yes. I've been doing stand-up for nine and a half years. When I first did the Beyoncé show it was a breakthrough; there was all this excitement but nothing happened immediately off the back of it.

Your thigh gap gag was so popular – do you think that was a pivotal moment in your career?

It gave me more self-esteem. I didn't start making loads of money or get lots of gigs or anything, but it grew my audience and made me realise I have a really solid fanbase. I talk about my experiences and break-ups and people seem to relate. I had a message from a girl who brought her ex-boyfriend to one of my shows and afterwards he turned to her and said: 'I'm sorry, I've realised what I've done now. I f**cked up.'

Something we've been talking about in the office is people who show off on social media – for example, gym and fitness selfies. How do you feel about them?

It doesn't bother me – each to their own. If you've got a six-pack and you're slammin', then good for you, show it off. What I don't like is insincerity, so if people post body-positive pictures but hide their face then it's like, well, you're not body positive because you're hiding your face. It also upsets me when you see press about a woman doing well or a woman fighting for something, like the woman who's accused Donald Trump of sexual harassment – the comments about her were so nasty. These are people behind their computers who feel safe enough to type these things.

Have you ever experienced trolling online?

Sometimes someone will post something nasty, but luckily my audience are fiercely protective so they'll jump in. It's usually if I post anything political; or I've got lots of American fans and sometimes if I post about Beyoncé they'll be like, 'Beyoncé is racist blah blah blah.' I'm like, 'Dude, the show is called What Would Beyoncé Do?! get off my page'.

Her fans are just so supportive...

Women
bring cocktails and put them on the stage

Do you have anyone who inspires you fashion-wise?

Older women, like old grannies. I always think, 'Do I feel happy when I wear it?' And if I do then I'll wear it. This week I'm gonna wear a onesie outfit with heels and YSL earrings.

Have you seen Instagram's hippest nan – @baddiewinkle?

I want to be her when I'm older – I want to dress exactly like that. I'm gonna invite her to one of my shows.

Do you feel pressure to be funny all the time?

No. I feel pressure when I do a show and audiences will ask me to go out with them afterwards and I have to say no because I'm knackered. Because they've just seen the show, they expect you to be the same as you are on stage, but it's work, and to come off afterwards and maintain that focus is hard. I have done it before, in Belfast. These girls took me on a night out – we went dancing, got shitfaced! We went for a Chinese then got a taxi home and it was amazing. Liverpool is like that too, Manchester, Newcastle – all those northern towns, they're crazy. Women will arrive with cocktails in a can and just put them on the stage.

Can touring be lonely?

It's really lonely. I've been single for five years – it's a lonely career choice.

Do you still get nervous?

All the time. I started doing Valentine's Day parties a few years ago and they've probably been the most memorable shows that I've done. I initially started doing them on Valentine's Day because it's so depressing. So I thought, 'Well, why not do m34-3y show, then get a DJ and have some dancing in the same room?' They're the best nights of my life. I had a couple in their sixties who came last year and they loved it.

Who would play you in a movie?

Baddiewinkle. Her or Whoopi Goldberg.

Who Runs The World?

- 2012 After years of 'gigs, gigs, gigs', Luisa writes her own show What Would Beyoncé Do?!, which becomes a sellout act across the world.
- 2015 Luisa is nominated for Best Comedy Show at the Melbourne Comedy Festival.
- 2015 Her follow-up show Am I Right Ladies?! sells out across the country. Her hugely popular thigh gap joke goes viral and racks up over 40 million views.
- 2016 In July, Luisa publishes her debut book What Would Beyoncé Do?! (Century, £14.99, available at amazon.co.uk).
- 2016 Am I Right Ladies?! is nominated for Best Comedy Show at the Melbourne Comedy Festival.
- 2017 What Would Beyoncé Do?! is set to air on BBC Three this Valentine's Day.

Urban Outfitters Does Glam Grunge

The 90s archives really have turned out to be a bottomless well of inspiration for designers over the past couple of seasons. If, however, you're over the full-on grunge aesthetic, Urban Outfitters' new collection might just be the update you need. While it has its roots firmly in the dressed-down, 'effortless cool' camp, it's also playing with luxe textures and super-girly details to concoct a sort of glamorous take on grunge. Case in point: this sweet-as-pie gingham dress paired with trainers and a sporty sweater, or the yellow velvet frock, complete with peeping petticoat, worn with a puffa jacket and knee-highs. It's like we're back in the 90s, isn't it? Only, this time we're better dressed.

UKULELE'S FINE ROMANCE

WITH A SOFT, POWDERY PALETTE OF PALE PINKS AND BLUES, UKULELE'S FULL-SKIRTED DRESSES AND LACE-OVERLAY SHIRTS MAKE FOR A CONTEMPORARY TAKE ON THE ROMANTIC GLAMOUR OF 1950S HOLLYWOOD – THINK GRACE KELLY IN, WELL, PRETTY MUCH ANY FILM SHE WAS EVER IN. THIS BRITISH BRAND MAY ONLY BE FOUR YEARS OLD, BUT WITH A HOST OF A-LIST FANS AND A SPRING COLLECTION THIS DREAMY, IT'S ALREADY CLEAR TO SEE THAT UKULELE HAS HIT ITS STRIDE.

Your Number 1... Skin Soothers

Zelens Z-22

Absolute Face Oil, £65

This beats any moisturiser when it comes to my intensely dry skin. It's a bit pricey but transforms my complexion from dull and lifeless to radiant and glowing with just a few drops. It's worth every penny. @bridiewilkins

PapayaGold

Paw Paw Moisturising Balm, £5.99

Any redness or dry patches are instantly soothed and, unlike other balms, this comes in a tube so you can get a liberal amount to apply. The honey extract makes this feel gorgeously luxurious, too. @sarahrosegoes

ESPA

Skin Rescue Wonderbalm, £5.99

An essential for my out-of-control cracked lips. A real multitasker, it's perfect for dry hands, too, so lives in my handbag. And I'm addicted to its spa-like scent. @lizzylovesit

Elizabeth Arden

Eight Hour Cream Skin Protectant

£5.99 I've still not found anything close to this classic when it comes to giving my skin a bit of TLC. I carry it everywhere and apply it at least three times a day – it's sitting on my desk right now!

@Sarah\_Barlow

Exuviance

Bionic Oxygen Facial, £60

I know it sounds scarily scientific, but this is my go-to product for a bad skin day. It turns into a foam and evaporates, and it's like any blemishes just fade away. My skin always feels beautifully soft after application.

It Takes Two, Baby

The couple workout is in. This Valentine's Day you might want to take some inspiration from these ridiculously fit pairs...

#YogaGoals

@keoniology & @the_southern_yogi

AKA Keoni Glory & Morgan

Between them they've amassed over 330k followers thanks to their impressively complicated yoga postures. Along with advice on nailing and perfecting each move, they offer individual routines so you can work out in the privacy of your home without any head-over-heels cringe moments.

#BikiniGoals

@theposhpt & @thephitpysio

AKA Lonan O'Herlihy & Millie Lindsey

Ex-Made In Chelsea star Lonan and his model girlfriend Millie have the bodies we can only dream of. From ab workouts to squats and even sports massages (which seem quite sexy) this pair have got it nailed. Plus, Lonan has a tendency to work out topless, which is a treat if you like that sort of thing.

You Are Well Fit...

A recent survey* revealed that 50 per cent of those asked admit they only go to the gym to check out the opposite sex. Pervs, the lot of you.

#PartnerWorkout Goals

@dreamteam.fitness

AKA Amanda & Jesper

If you can see past the kissy-kissy 'staring into each other's eyes' snaps, then this Stockholm-based pair offer some interesting partner workouts that will test even the most avid gym-goer. Squats, body lifts and even their signature move, the girlfriend bench press, make an appearance.

MINUTES TO... BOOST YOUR DATING GAME

Modern romance is a minefield, so we asked dating guru James Preece for his top tips

1 Rethink your photo
Make sure your main profile pic is a happy, smiling headshot – you'll get more matches if you look approachable. Stick to a maximum of five and one of your photos needs to be a talking point. This makes it much easier for people to start a conversation with you. In other words, you'll get fewer low-effort 'hi' messages.

2 Be proactive
Dating apps aren't a magical solution – you must put in the effort if you want to make it work. Don't just sit back and wait for people to contact you – proactively reach out to the ones you like. If all else fails, try changing your photos or uploading extra ones. They could make all the difference.

3 Timing is everything
Suggest going for a drink after

Swipe right for Mr Right (OK, and that ASOS dress you've been eyeing up) a few messages. I also always advise the one thing most people are too scared to do – speak on the phone! That way you get to know them quickly. When it comes to the first date, keep it short. Don't get hung up on any awkward silences either – a natural break is a good thing. If you like them, let them know and don't play too hard to get. The next morning is a good time to text them a 'thanks' or 'great night' message.

4 Think about body language
The eyes are the biggest giveaway. Pupils dilate when someone likes what they see and they'll keep their gaze on the 'flirting triangle'. This is the area between the eyes and the mouth. If you do the same, you'll have much deeper, more intimate conversations.

5 Safety first
When it comes to setting up your profile, be honest or you risk instant disappointment. If you aren't sure about someone, then you don't need to keep talking. If they say something inappropriate, report them and save someone else from the same bad experience.

Date Night In

Candles. Champagne. Couch. Who needs a fancy restaurant when you can snuggle up with a movie and a Chinese takeaway? We've pounded the high street for the hottest interiors to transform your pad into a romantic retreat; and if anything's going to make you want to remain housebound this Valentine's, it's this gorgeous haul. So sit back, relax and spend the money you'll save on a pricey dinner on these beauties instead. Now that's what we call a successful date.

'Going out on Valentine's Day always ends up being a spenny affair – plus you wait an age for your food and have to wade through hundreds of heart-shaped balloons. Staying in sounds perfect to me – I'll be picking up this candlestick and blanket for a cosy night in with my SO.'

Sweetheart Biscuits

NOTE:
YOU'LL NEED
A HEART-SHAPED
COOKIE CUTTER.
SAINSBURY'S HAS A SET OF
5 FOR £4

INGREDIENTS

- A little butter, for greasing
- 1 medium egg
- 2-3 drops vanilla extract
- 75g caster sugar
- 100g butter or a dairy-free alternative (we used

- Trex), room temp
- 200g plain flour
- Pinch of salt
- 50g polenta or semolina

TO DECORATE

- 250g icing sugar
- Pink food colouring

1 Preheat the oven to 200°C/fan oven 180°C/gas mark 6. Lightly grease two baking trays with a little butter.

2 Beat the egg, vanilla extract and sugar.

3 Put the butter into a bowl with 150g (6oz) flour and the salt. Beat until smooth and creamy.

4 Gradually beat in the egg and sugar mix. Add the remaining flour and polenta or semolina and mix to make a smooth dough.

5 Turn out onto a lightly floured worktop and roll out with a floured rolling pin until 5mm (¼ in) thick. Use 2 or 3 different-sized heart-shaped cutters to stamp onto biscuits. Transfer to baking trays.

6 Bake for 16-18 minutes until light golden brown. Cool for a few minutes on the trays, then transfer to a wire rack to cool completely.

7 Mix 75g (3oz) icing sugar with a little water to make a stiff icing. Pipe around the edge of the biscuits using a small icing bag fitted with a fine plain icing tube. Let set. Mix the remaining icing sugar with a little water and 1-2 drops of pink colouring. Spread over the biscuits one at a time, so that it reaches the piped edges. Leave until set.

Dirty Little Cheater...

Nothing says love like a ready meal, right? As long as you ditch the packaging, they needn't know you didn't make it! Here's our round-up of the best Valentine's offerings on the high street.

✳️ M&S Dine In Deal, £20 We'd start with the Gastropub Camembert with chutney and move on to the salmon medallions with lobster for the main. Don't forget the fizz and a free box of chocolates too.

✳️ Waitrose Valentine's Dinner For Two, £20 We're swayed by a steak and chips feast, but it's the baked vanilla heart cheesecake that made us realise that this is the route to bae's... well, stomach. If you don't quite make it to dessert and the night turns more Netflix than chill, invite the girls round to polish off the cake and the wine.

✳️ Morrisons Meal Deal, £15 Who could say no to a starter, main, side, dessert and bottle of wine for £15? Invite friends around for a double date and make the most of it. We've got our hearts set on the cheese soufflé.

If You Watch One Thing...

FIFTY SHADES DARKER

It's been two years since Christian Grey's face (and abs) graced our screens, but he's back for V Day. Having broken up at the end of the first movie, Ana and Christian begin a new 'arrangement' in this sequel – and it's all a bit more sinister. It's bound to be cheesy (there've been no advance screenings, so even we're in the dark-er) but Jamie Dornan always does it for us.

River Island's Designer Direction

Collaborations come and go, but River's latest Design Forum hook-up will, quite simply, blow your mind...

You know you've made it when you land a River Island Design Forum collab – the proof is in the fashionable punch. SIBLING, Zoe Jordan and Eudon Choi are just some of the designer heavyweights who kick-started their careers this way. For SS17, though, River Island has enlisted the talents of Margot Bowman, making her the first artist to secure the coveted spot. The Central Saint Martins grad has created an eight-piece edit for the brand, which will be exclusively stocked online from 19 February, and boy, are you in for a treat. Known for her unique, bold designs, Margot's capsule collection features bright hues, abstract prints and powerful motifs. Basically, it's one of those collections that'll have everyone asking where your outfit is from and with prices ranging from £25-£65, we want the whole lot. We predict Margot will be the next big thing, so don't delay.

SELENA'S WEEKND ROMANCE ...

All eyes have been on Selena Gomez and The Weeknd parading around Italy. But the 'loved-up' couple shots are all too perfect for such a private pair.

DOCTOR WHO? ER, GILLIAN ANDERSON

Following the big announcement that Peter Capaldi will be stepping down as Doctor Who, Gillian Anderson has rocketed to the top of the favourites list and we are most in favour. She was awesome in The Fall and it's about time a woman got to take the reins. We will also accept Olivia Colman as a replacement, who's incredible too.
