Q & A

Charlie Day

The actor, 41, stars as a high school teacher in the new comedy Fist Fight

You costar with Ice Cube and Tracy Morgan. What was it like on-set?

It was a really good energy. Except for during the fight scenes when Cube and I would have to break to get an ice pack or something. But there was a lot of making each other laugh.

What kind of student were you?

I was always a little bit of a class clown. I was tiny and freckly, and I wanted girls to like me, so I figured the best way to do that was to make them laugh.

Your son Russell is 5 now. What’s the biggest challenge of parenthood?

Trying to learn how to be one! There’s no rule book, and nobody knows what they are doing.

What keeps you grounded?

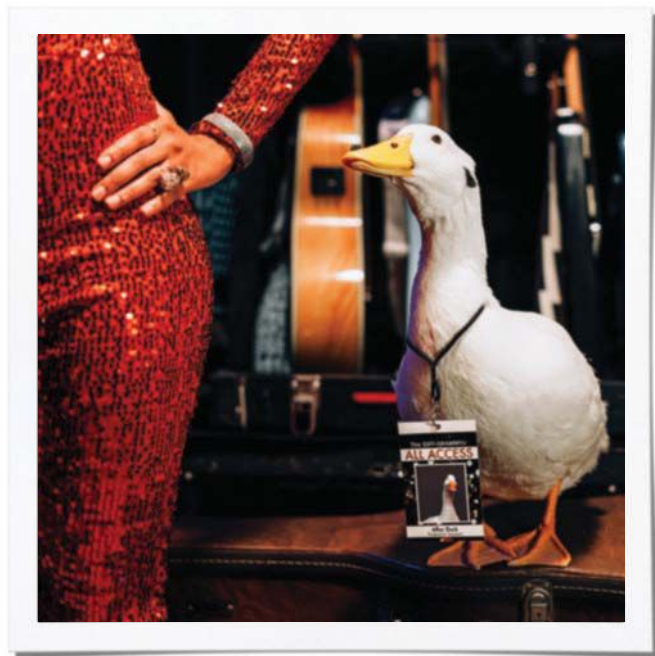

My wife [Mary Elizabeth Ellis] and I have been together for 15 years, and I’m still best friends with my childhood friends from Rhode Island. They’re not impressed with any of this.

THE DUCK DISHES ON THE GRAMMYS®

FOUR THINGS YOU NEVER KNEW, STRAIGHT FROM THE AFLAC DUCK—WHO WAS A PRODUCTION ASSISTANT FOR THE SHOW AND OUR EYES AND EARS (AND BILL!) BEHIND THE SCENES

It took a squad of 150 stagehands, 130 technicians, 12 stage managers and one duck to produce the show. All of them worked hard knowing that even a small mishap could have huge consequences. Everyone loves a #partyfowl, and no one wants a #partyfoul.

Being prepared for mishaps is just as important for live shows as it is for life. Even though the main event lasted just three and a half hours, the Aflac duck and other performers spent three full days in rehearsals doing sound checks and camera blocking.

Over 1,000 lights were used to make sure the stars were their brightest that night. It took an entire crew of riggers, with help from the duck, nearly a week to load in and hang all of the equipment. Pro tip: Apply for supplemental insurance before you're hoisting 160 tons of lights above your head.

The duck wasn't the only one with a personal mic. There were 400 in use Sunday night, and every artist who hit the stage had his or her own.

‘HELLO,’ AGAIN!

Adele owned the night. She opened the show with her ubiquitous hit “Hello”; memorialized fellow Brit George Michael with a somber cover of “Fastlove” (which she stopped and restarted, explaining, “I can’t mess this up for him”); won all five of the awards she was up for; and even confirmed her marriage to longtime partner Simon Konecki during her Album of the Year nonacceptance speech.

The star broke a trophy in two for fellow nominee Beyoncé.

"It had never been done before, so I really wasn't expecting it," Lindsay says of becoming the first African-American Bachelorette.

RACHEL LINDSAY THE NEW BACHELORETTE MAKES HISTORY

BY CHRISTINA DUGAN

SHE WAS THE WOMAN

Nick Viall chose to give a First Impression Rose on the current season of The Bachelor; and apparently the folks at the network agreed. Rachel Lindsay, 31, a Dallas lawyer, will be the next star of ABC's singles juggernaut, becoming the new Bachelorette. The news, announced on Jimmy Kimmel Live Feb. 13, even as she remained on the current season of The Bachelor, wasn't just reality trivia but also a bit of history: Lindsay will be the first African-American woman to hand out roses. "I'm honored to be chosen to be the first," she says. "I'm happy to represent myself as a black woman in front of America, and to have America rally behind me on my journey to find love." →

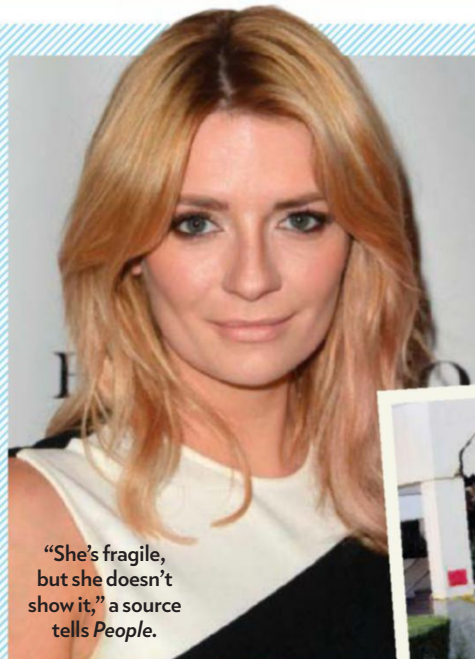

"I just want a guy with good morals who's funny," Lindsay says. "And they have to like sports!" Above, Lindsay and Nick Viall, 36, get close on the current season of The Bachelor.

'MY PARENTS TRUST ME AND ARE EXCITED FOR ME. I'M READY TO MAKE THEM PROUD AND BRING THEM HOME A SON-IN-LAW!'
—RACHEL LINDSAY

The show has been criticized for its lack of diversity—in 33 seasons so far there had never been a black Bachelor or Bachelorette. But Lindsay says she doesn't feel any added pressure when it comes to sifting through suitors. "Honestly, it's not going to be that different from any other season of The Bachelorette," she says. "Just because the color of my skin is different, it doesn't mean my journey for love has to be any different. I'm still just a woman trying to find the One." Which, she stresses, is the entire point of being on the show in the first place. "I'm at a stage in my life where I'm ready for a family," Lindsay says. "I'm ready to get married. I want a guy who is not afraid of that." But will she be looking for another Nick-type or decide to take a different path? "I'm really not picky," she says with a laugh. "Physically, I really don't have a type, but I'm a sucker for a great smile," she says. "But I'm rooting for me! Is love going to happen? Where is he? I'm grateful to have the opportunity to do this again, but this time I'm in the driver's seat! I get to have my choice!"

"She's fragile, but she doesn't show it," a source tells People.

MISCHA BARTON HEALTH UPDATE

It wasn't the fresh start Mischa Barton had hoped for. After an attempt to jump-start her career with a stint on Dancing with the Stars last year, the troubled actress, 31, made headlines when erratic behavior at her Jan. 25 birthday party led to an overnight hospitalization. At the time Barton told People she'd been drugged with GHB and "voluntarily went to get professional help." Two weeks later the former O.C. star was moving out of her West Hollywood apartment when she misjudged the height of a carport and crashed a U-Haul into an apartment building. "It was a mistake, but she was sober," says a friend. "She just wants to get her career going again, change people's perception of her and move on."

MATT DAMON

THE STAR, 46, BATTLES MYTHOLOGICAL MONSTERS IN HIS ACTION-PACKED FILM

You learned archery for your new movie, The Great Wall. Do you impress friends and family with your bow-and-arrow skills?

No. Well, I can shoot CGI arrows as well as anybody. I'd give Orlando Bloom [Lord of the Rings star archer Legolas] a run for his money in a CGI arrow battle. But the guy who trained me is the best in the world. He actually removed one of his thumbs above the knuckle so he could do it faster.

What do you think of the Internet's obsession with your character's hair?

It was the man bun, which was fun. I mean they put 700 extensions in, it took like 12 hours, and then I had to try and keep them in. By the time they cut them out, it was like a rat's nest. I took a picture of it. I think there was stuff living in there.

Did you enjoy having your family with you on location?

It was incredible. We were filming in China for six months. The kids really love it there. They keep asking to go back!

—KARA WARNER

"It's a big popcorn movie," Damon says of The Great Wall.

Trent Lamar Jackson with Katherine Jackson in 2016.

KATHERINE JACKSON A Victim of Elder Abuse?

There seems to be more drama ahead for the Jackson family. On Feb. 8 matriarch Katherine Jackson, 86, took out a restraining order in Los Angeles against her nephew and driver, Trent Lamar Jackson, 52. According to court papers obtained by People, "bank accounts have been accessed by Trent without authorization" and Jackson has been subjected to "years of mental/emotional abuse." The situation has left her "in a constant state of fear and confusion." A judge granted Jackson's request and ordered her nephew to move out, but Jackson, who was in London visiting her daughter Janet and new grandchild when papers were filed, says she's still "afraid to go home with Trent there." A family source tells People that the situation deteriorated in recent years. "After Michael died, Trent went from being a driver to acting like he owned the place." (Attempts to reach Lamar Jackson were not returned.) A hearing has been scheduled for March 1. —MIA McNIECE

"I think it's so important for girls and women to know we did not wake up like this."

KARLA SOUZA MY MORNING ROUTINE

One would think that actress Karla Souza, 31, who stars in How to Get Away with Murder and in the new film Everybody Loves Somebody, would be too busy to get eight hours of sleep a night, but she's revamped her routine to ensure shut-eye. "It's not easy!" she says, adding that she even maintains a no-phones-after-9 p.m. rule. Below, a look at how all that rest pays off in the morning.

9 a.m.: Exercise First "I'm a snooze queen, so I recently started waking up to my Fitbit, which is tingly on my arm. It's a lot nicer than my alarm! Then I go for a quick jog-walk. When I get home, I do some yoga poses to open my body up since I've been lying down for eight hours!"

9:30 a.m.: Shower Time "While I'm taking a shower, I listen to an international music app called Radiooooo. I choose the country and the year I want music from, so I have access to some different sounds and tastes."

10 a.m.: Breakfast "I have two eggs with a piece of turkey, with a little dash of cottage cheese, and then I take my coffee in the car. I like to listen to NPR if I don't have a call. My commute takes an hour, so the car is a big part of my life."

10:30 a.m.: Glam Squad "All my makeup is done on-set. On weekends I let my skin breathe and don't wear any makeup!"

2017 marks the 30th anniversary of Dirty Dancing, starring Swayze and Jennifer Grey. Today, Lisa says, "I love that on YouTube you can find people at weddings doing their dance!"

Dirty Dancing
(Jacket, est. $4,000-$6,000)
"He loved that jacket," says Lisa. "He wore it in his everyday life, on his motorcycle or for photo shoots. It's personally worn in."

REMEMBERING PATRICK SWAYZE

After her husband, Patrick Swayze, died in 2009 from pancreatic cancer, his wife of 34 years Lisa Niemi Swayze says she "meticulously packed" away his belongings. "It was difficult," she admits, "but what kept me going was knowing someday I'd share his incredible life with others." From April 28 to 29 Julien's Auctions in Los Angeles will offer up some of Swayze's beloved treasures. (A portion of the proceeds will go to the Pancreatic Cancer Action Network, pancan.org.) It's a bittersweet moment for his widow, who says, "He was so strong and yet so soft." —LIZ MCNEIL

Point Break
(Surfboard, est. $4,000-$6,000)
"There wasn't anything he couldn't do, but he said surfing was one of the hardest things he had to learn," says Lisa. "He was fearless," she says, "but never more so than when he fought his cancer. He was one tough guy."

Ghost
(Shirt, est. $2,000-$4,000; key chain from costar Demi Moore, est. $1,000-$2,000)
"It's funny because after he gets killed in the movie, he's pretty much in the same costume the rest of the film. It was an easy wardrobe!" says Lisa.

To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything! Julie Newmar
(Wig, est. $800-$1,200)
"On the last day he was dawdling at the mirror," says Lisa of the role that required a wig and heels. "When I asked why, he said, 'It's my last chance to look pretty.'"

Malin Akerman, 38, and Damian Lewis, 46, star on season 2 of Billions, now airing on Showtime.

DOUBLE-TALK

Damian Lewis & Malin Akerman

THEY PLAY A MARRIED COUPLE ON THE FINANCIAL DRAMA BILLIONS. NOW THE DUO SHARE SECRETS FROM THE SET

Damian, you play shady hedge fund manager Bobby Axelrod. Did you have to learn economics for the role?

LEWIS I knew a bit about hedge funds, but I was surprised how separate they are from conventional Wall Street. But I liked meeting the hedge fund guys and seeing what makes them tick.

AKERMAN Money!

LEWIS Yes, money. But they also like winning, and they like playing the game. They like to be proved right.

How different are you in real life from your characters?

LEWIS Bobby's not as rich as I am, of course! And I'm essentially from a privately educated English background, and he's a blue-collar Irish-Jewish American.

AKERMAN And Lara's not as bitchy as I am [laughs]. No, I think it's the family values. I would kill for my family, so there's similarity there. I also grew up with nothing—my family didn't even have a car until I was 12 or 13, so I can relate to her humble beginnings.

What's it like to experience the over-the-top wealth of the Axelrods?

AKERMAN At the end of the day, we just sit in our trailers, but it's so fun to pretend. But I don't think I'd live long if I had that kind of money. I'd just be throwing parties all the time.

Life on the Road (streaming on Netflix) sees The Office's David Brent chasing rock and roll dreams.

RICKY GERVAIS THE OFFICE— AND POLITICS!

More than 15 years have passed since Ricky Gervais found fame playing the role of hapless middle manager David Brent in the original Office. He's gone on to film and TV success in Hollywood, but he still has a soft spot for the cringe-inducing paper salesman—and so he's brought him back for a new Netflix movie, David Brent: Life on the Road. In it, Brent—who fantasized about show-business success while tormenting his colleagues on the British sitcom—has decided to try being a rock star.

"We're still sort of laughing at his delusion," says Gervais, 55. Back in 2001, Brent's ghastly behavior got big laughs, but Gervais says his real appeal is that "we've all got a little bit of Brent in us—we all need love, we all want to hope we're doing well and living a good life."

The comedian says that versions of his hero

'ON THE ONE HAND, YOU ARE ALLOWED TO FIND DAVID BRENT A LITTLE BIT DAFT AND ACCIDENTALLY OFFENSIVE, BUT YOU ALSO WANT TO GO, "WELL, AT LEAST HE'S TRYING!"'
—RICKY GERVAIS

exist in real life—perhaps in the White House. "David Brent and Donald Trump are both idiot show-off narcissists," he says with a laugh. "When did people start bragging about being a millionaire or forcing themselves on women? Can you imagine Lincoln getting into Twitter spats?"

While Gervais has yet to fall in POTUS's social media crosshairs, the four-time Golden Globes host has never been afraid to thumb his nose at the rich and famous—only now he's not sure how many folks are in on the joke. "I've found, as a performer who plays a bit of a misinformed bigot bore, that half the audience takes that on face value," he says. Still, he says he's found "a new responsibility—truth is more important than it's ever been." —LANFORD BEARD

QUINCY JONES IS AN EGOT

THE LEGENDARY PRODUCER ON WHAT IT'S LIKE TO SCORE THE GRAND SLAM OF SHOW BUSINESS

With his 2016 Tony for The Color Purple, Jones is now an EGOT (a winner of an Emmy, Grammy, Oscar and Tony).

"It is such a thrill. You can't plan for things like this, but to complete the EGOT circle is pretty amazing. I've been around a long time, so I know, or knew, everyone on the list [other winners include Audrey Hepburn, Mel Brooks and Rita Moreno]."

His celebration was low-key.

"I quit drinking more than a year ago, so there wasn't any 'celebrating' in that sense. It was just a few phone calls with friends and family and then back to work. After all of these years, it's still really nice when your kids are proud of you."

Retirement is not in his vocabulary—yet.

"I'm as busy as I've ever been. My two mottoes are 'If you empty the cup every time, it will come back twice as full' and 'Love, laugh, live and give.' That's how I live my life." —KARA WARNER

A Grieving Father Who Changed Lives

Matthew Badger, whose three daughters died in a tragic fire on Christmas Day 2011, started a foundation in their memory

On Feb. 9, Matthew Badger, 51, whose three daughters perished in a horrific fire at his ex-wife’s home on Dec. 25, 2011, in Stamford, Conn., died of “natural causes,” according to his longtime girlfriend Abby Ballin, who told People he was surrounded by friends and family. “He was a fighter till the end,” says Ballin. “I’m just so happy he doesn’t have to fight anymore. He’s free.” Badger’s ex-wife Madonna mourned his passing as well, writing on Facebook: “He is with his children and his parents and his brother Mark. My heart is broken but also joyous that they are together.” Following the deaths of daughter Lily, 9, and twins Sarah and Grace, 7, Badger cofounded the LilySarahGraceFund (lilysarahgrace.org) with Ballin to fund the arts in public schools. “I’m trying to make up for what three little girls would have done for the planet,” he told People in 2012. Ballin, who is also the creative director, says the nonprofit will go on. “Every time I close my eyes I see him dancing,” she says. “I know he’s with the girls.” A service will be held on March 3 in New York City.

1 Big Little Lies

Reese Witherspoon, Nicole Kidman and Shailene Woodley as truly desperate housewives

No.

TV

COMEDY-DRAMA Based on Liane Moriarty's bestseller, Lies starts on a funny if familiar note of suburban satire in the form of one Madeline Mackenzie (Witherspoon), a neurotically dynamic stay-at-home mom in affluent Monterey, Calif. Control freak, taskmaster, breeder of grudges—she's described as "an itty-bitty ball of rage"—she's at war with another straining-after-perfection mother, Renata (Laura Dern), and not above ruining Renata's daughter's birthday party. But below this comedy there's a dark story—framed, in fact, by a violent death. One of Madeline's friends, the beautiful, accomplished Celeste (Kidman), is being physically abused by her husband (Alexander Skarsgård), and another, Jane (Shailene Woodley), is so scared, she keeps a pistol beneath her pillow. Superbly acted, Lies turns out to be less about catfighting wives than the bruising, even soul-killing sexual struggle between men and women. (HBO, Feb. 19, 9 p.m.)

No. 2 The Good Fight

Forget the Florricks! Christine Baranski returns as Chicago's savviest lawyer

STREAMING DRAMA This Good Wife spinoff, which will be streaming at CBS All Access, brings back two familiar attorneys—brisk, bristling Diane Lockhart (Baranski) and quieter, easy-to-underestimate Cush Jumbo (Lucca Quinn)—and sets them up in a new Chicago firm. The pilot feels unfocused, but that's probably just a matter of adjusting to the loss of Julianna Margulies and her softly accusing stare. It's got an ace cast (Delroy Lindo, Rose Leslie) and (like the original) a plotline that's nicely scalloped with surprises. (Launches Feb. 19, 8 p.m.; premiere also airs on CBS at that same time)

No. 3 Billions

TV DRAMA

If money is the root of all evil, pride is the best fertilizer. As season 2 starts, hedge-fund titan Bobby Axelrod (Damian Lewis) practically pats himself on the back as he comes up with a fresh legal trick to poleax his foe, U.S. Attorney Chuck Rhoades (Paul Giamatti). And Rhoades, whose devotion to justice is matched only by his kinky sexual compulsions, comes up with his own sly move. Billions' stock remains high. (Showtime, Feb. 19, 10 p.m.)

No. 4 Ryan Adams, Prisoner

MUSIC ROCK

Prisoner is haunted by the pain of breaking up (Adams and actress Mandy Moore divorced in 2016). Yet even when his lyrics cling to loss ("As the fire burns around us in the dark/ One part is the world and one's my heart"), Adams lets in light with the melody. A songwriter with that kind of talent is never a bummer. (Feb. 17)

The latest documentary spectacular (BBC America, Feb. 18, 9 p.m.) brings us closer than ever to wildlife across six world habitats. British naturalist and broadcasting icon Sir David Attenborough, who narrates the series, talks to People about his concerns for the planet—and about his life at age 90.

Are you still surprised by nature and the animals that we're seeing in this series?

The snow leopard is very beautiful, extremely rare, and you've only caught glimpses previously. I just sat there with my jaw open when I saw the sequence in the mountains program. You will get a lump in your throat. You've done and seen so much—what should everyone add to their bucket list of world experiences?

Dive on a coral reef. The first time you do so is unforgettable, as beneath you are 250 animals and species—in all the most brilliant colors—fanning and fishing and floating and moving. You're transported into a different firmament. Are you optimistic for the planet you've spent so many decades teaching us about?

The world's in for a tough time, and I think human beings are too. The two big problems that could happen—I'm not sure in my lifetime but in yours!—affect elephants and rhinos. The tragic thing about that is we are inflicting it. If we could control human beings, the problem would be over. What's your big regret in all your years of traveling?

You miss some of your children's childhood... [pauses] as well as the company of your wife. I'm lucky. I'm perfectly aware an awful lot of people at 90 can't walk or remember things. I can't remember all that much—but I can walk! —SIMON PERRY

No. 12 The Best New Books

Two (very different) novels about communing with the dead and a wry romantic comedy from Elinor Lipman
EDITED BY KIM HUBBARD

WEEK

Sara Flannery Murphy The Possessions

NOVEL A woman with a painful past throws herself into work to avoid her emotions. That could be any contemporary narrative—except Edie's job entails taking a pill that allows the dead to take over her body for an hour so their loved ones can commune with them. A suspenseful debut novel that's stylish and deliciously creepy.

Elinor Lipman On Turpentine Lane

NOVEL When a restless woman impulsively buys a dilapidated cottage, she winds up with problems she didn't anticipate: love trouble, family disarray, even a murder investigation. The cleverly tangled plot—along with some snappy dialogue and a wry, likable heroine—makes Lipman's latest a diverting delight.

George Saunders Lincoln in the Bardo

NOVEL Don't be put off by the stylistic strangeness of this first novel from short-story master Saunders. It's narrated by a cast of ghosts including Willie Lincoln, Abe's son, felled at 11 by typhoid fever and now stuck in the bardo (Tibetan Buddhism's version of limbo). The grieving President visits Willie's crypt, where comical, restless spirits try to help father and son let go. This framing of Lincoln's personal loss within the larger struggle of the Civil War is devastatingly moving.

NEW IN NONFICTION

Alana Massey All the Lives I Want

Are you a Gwyneth or a Winona—and what does that say about you? Insightful essays on how celebrities influence our fears and dreams.

Rebecca Schuman Schadenfreude, A Love Story

It started, of course, with a boy.... A young woman's heartfelt, hilarious recounting of her (often one-sided) passion for all things German.

Christine Hyung-Oak Lee Tell Me Everything You Don't Remember

She had a stroke at 33, then her husband cheated on her and left her with a newborn. A searing memoir buoyed by hope.

AMAL AND GEORGE
CLOONEY

First Comes Marriage, Then Comes...

On the set of his movie Suburbicon late last year, George and Amal Clooney couldn't seem to contain their happiness—and his coworkers couldn't help but wonder. “George and Amal were both glowing,” says a set source. “There were hints and rumors about her being pregnant. She seemed careful with food and didn't have any caffeine.” During Amal's several visits to the set, “she greeted everyone with a friendly handshake and a huge smile. She acted very down-to-earth. She didn't ask for anything and just wanted to hang out in the background. George wouldn't really let her, though. He would bring her around the set, beam and introduce her as ‘my wife, Amal.’ It was very cute to see how excited he was.”

Several weeks later the world was finally let in on their not-so-little secret. The former perennial bachelor, 55, who stunned everyone in 2014 by proposing to Amal, a Lebanese-British human-rights lawyer, is about to become a first-time father—times two. Multiple sources confirmed to People that Amal, 39, is expecting twins—a boy and a girl—this spring. “George is excited but nervous,” says a source close to the couple's inner circle. “He is excited about the kids, but also has the normal amount of nerves that come with being parents.” For her part, Amal “strikes me as someone who’ll be a fantastic mother,” says another insider. “Intelligent, loving, funny, smart, nurturing. She doesn’t seem someone who will let kids get away with being Hollywood children.”

BABIES ON BOARD!

1. On Jan. 10 the two took advantage of the mild winter weather by going on a quiet afternoon stroll together along the riverbank near their mansion in England. 2. Amal showed the beginnings of a bump when she was honored on Jan. 17 at the World Economic Forum Annual Meeting in Switzerland for raising awareness about ISIS’s devastation of the Yazidi people in Iraq. 3. Opting for casual comfort while flying with her husband to L.A. on Jan. 27, Amal covered up with an Adam Lippes coat.

The role of dad is just the latest development in Clooney’s happily-ever-after script—a storyline the actor didn’t necessarily envision writing for himself before he met Amal in October 2013. “I don’t have that gene that people have to replicate,” Clooney told People when he was named Sexiest Man Alive in 2006. “But everything in my life has changed over time.” After marrying in an elaborate four-day Venice celebration in September 2014, the two began a life together that has been “definitely quieter, more family-oriented” than Clooney’s single days, says an insider, despite their travels around the world for work, play and humanitarian causes. Most recently the couple have been spending more time at their mansion in the countryside west of London that they reportedly purchased for $12 million shortly after their wedding. Just-completed renovations include a new pool, theater room, garden terrace—and now likely a double nursery. Marrying Amal “sort of changed everything in terms of what I thought my future—my personal future—was going to be,” George told People in 2015. “I wasn’t always completely optimistic about how it was going to work out personally for me. But now I am.” Says one source: “Because he’s waited so long, it has all come very late, but very quickly to him. Seeing them together, it’s like looking at a different portrait of his life now. He’s so in love with her.”

While the Clooneys have no intention of making a public announcement about the pregnancy, they have privately shared their joy with close friends and family. Suburbicon costar Matt Damon said George pulled him aside to share the good news when Amal was only eight weeks pregnant. “I almost started crying,” Damon told Entertainment Tonight Canada. “I was so happy for him.” Pal Don Cheadle told People at a Grammys party that he’d known for a while, but “we keep each other’s secrets.” Then he cracked, “I’m going to have to raise them!”

Over the holidays the couple “quietly let everyone in both families know,” says another insider, and Amal’s mother, Baria Alamuddin, was spotted recently buying vintage children’s books at a secondhand bookstore in London. Both are very close with their own parents. George “will be a great father because he’s always had a very strong sense of family,” says the longtime insider. “That comes from his father, Nick, and mother, Nina. If you look at it, he’s had a kind of family around him, he’s extremely loyal to friends.” The couple have hosted Amal’s mom, her dad, Ramzi, and her siblings at their English estate. Her sister Tala also has kids, including twin boys. “Amal dotes on them,” says a family friend. Wherever the Clooneys raise their brood (they also have houses in L.A. and Lake Como,

Friend and costar Matt Damon told Entertainment Tonight Canada that he’s “thrilled” for the couple. “She’s amazing. He hit the jackpot,” he said. “They’re going to be awesome parents. Those kids are lucky.”

Italy), it’s a safe bet that mom and dad will take a beat to adjust to becoming a family of four. (Amal has still been working for clients such as Nadia Murad, an Iraqi activist who survived being kidnapped by ISIS, but she “stopped traveling for dangerous missions months ago,” says a source.) “George knows how brilliant Amal is in her work and how nurturing of a person she is. He knows she will be a wonderful mother,” says the source close to the couple’s inner circle. While making Suburbicon, Clooney “hinted that he might be taking some time off,” says the set source. “That would be very rare for him, but now it all adds up. He’s going to be the best dad.”

JESSA DUGGAR
SEEWALD
& BEN

2 Kids AND

Double Trouble

"It's so cute to see the difference in their personalities," Jessa says of 4-day-old baby Henry (on Feb. 10) and 15-month-old son Spurgeon (left, with Dad). "Every milestone is such a joy to watch."

Counting!

By EMILY STROHM

AS THEY SHOW OFF BABY HENRY JUST 4 DAYS AFTER HIS BIRTH, THE REALITY STARS SAY THEY'RE JUST GETTING STARTED: 'WE DEFINITELY WANT A LOT OF KIDS'

It's just before lunch at Jessa Duggar Seewald's Arkansas home, and the mom of two is getting a crash course in multitasking, breast-feeding her infant son Henry Wilberforce while simultaneously having her hair and makeup done up for a People photo shoot. Her husband, Ben, playfully chases after the couple's 15-month-old son Spurgeon as he wiggles off the couch and heads down the hallway. "I take one. He takes the other," Jessa says of their tag-team parenting strategy since welcoming a new baby four days earlier. Ben compares it to sports. "Right now we have two kids and there's two of us, so it's man-to-man coverage," he says. "When we have more, we'll have to switch it up to a zone defense!"

Though having two children under the age of 2 would overwhelm most parents, for the Seewalds, adding even more children to their quickly growing brood is something they're already anticipating. "You can't really describe the love that you have for your children," says Jessa. "Before the new baby I would think, 'How could I ever love another child as much as I love Spurgeon?' But the second I saw him it blows you away. We definitely want a lot of kids."

That isn't exactly a surprising statement given the megafamily in which Jessa was raised. The fourth of 19 children born to Jim Bob and Michelle Duggar, Jessa, 24, first found fame alongside her siblings on her parents' TLC reality show 19 Kids and Counting. Now she's on her way to following in her famous parents' footsteps with back-to-back babies of her own. "My mom always says, 'Love doesn't divide, it multiplies,'" says Jessa. "It's so true."

In the months leading up to baby Henry's arrival, the reality star, whose pregnancy is heavily featured on the new season of her TLC series Counting On (Mondays, 9/8c), was preparing herself for another long, painful delivery. While giving birth to Spurgeon in

A Duggar Family Tradition

Like her parents, Jim Bob and Michelle Duggar (right, with the entire Duggar clan at Jessa's 2014 wedding), Jessa and Ben say they're open to having as many kids as God will allow—plus the ones they plan to adopt. "Right now we're thinking about square footage per child," says Jessa. "So we are currently looking for a bigger place!"

2015, she was in labor for nearly two full days. When the baby finally arrived, in a home birth attended by a midwife, Jessa had to be rushed to the hospital because of excessive bleeding and required a transfusion. "It was intense and completely exhausting," she recalls of the dramatic delivery. "I slept for 24 straight hours afterwards."

This time she braced for the worst, but the birth of her second child instead proved to be a much more peaceful experience. "Labor is labor, but it was calm and relaxed," she says. Opting for a home birth again, Jessa enlisted the same midwife and assistant to deliver the baby. Just before midnight on Feb. 5, her water broke, and within two hours she was experiencing strong contractions. From there, "Ben and

Behind the Names

Between Spurgeon and now Wilberforce, “we’ve fallen into a theme of naming,” says Ben, who says they draw inspiration from heroes of the Christian faith. “But we don’t want to stick to it. The next kid could have a totally different name.”

A New Family Member

1. “In hindsight I can say yes, it was easier than the first time,” says Jessa (with baby Henry). “But in the moment it felt like, ‘I can’t do this. Somebody else, take over!’”
2. Jessa praises her husband, Ben, as “such a huge, huge help to me. He’s just always there to offer support.”
3. Their toddler Spurgeon “is still pretty young, so he doesn’t take it personally if we devote a little more attention to the baby,” dad Ben explains. “He runs around and plays and does his own thing a lot of the time.”

‘Spurgeon was upset whenever we took the baby back. He wanted to keep holding him’

—JESSA DUGGAR SEEWALD

A Family Bond
 “Jessa is a really loving mother,” says Ben (with his wife, son Spurgeon and baby Henry, photographed at their Fayetteville, Ark., home on Feb. 10).

I were surprised how fast it went.” Baby Henry was born at 4:26 a.m. on Feb. 6, weighing 8 lbs. 11 oz., arriving so quickly that matriarch Michelle, 50, and oldest Duggar daughter Jana nearly missed the birth. “They came at the very end,” Jessa says. “I was already pushing when they walked in the door.”

One person in particular Jessa was happy to have present was her sister Jill Duggar Dillard, who’s also pregnant with her second, due in July. “We were really thankful that she was able to be here,” Jessa says of Jill, who is set to return to Central America with her husband, Derick, and son Israel, 22 months, for several months of mission work before the birth of their own second son. “It was so fun to have her here to meet Henry.”

At home, Ben was overjoyed to welcome the newest member of the Seewald family but admits he was worried about his wife’s health. “There were a lot of emotions when I was holding Henry for the first time,” he says. “I was really grateful, but it was also at the same point where we had to transfer Jessa to the hospital the last time.

So there was a lot going on in my mind. I was trying to pray.”

As it turned out, Jessa and the baby were perfectly healthy. After taking a “nice long nap,” the couple got to work on naming the newest member of their family—a tall order considering his brother’s unique moniker. “We wanted to look at him and see his personality and then make a final decision,” Jessa says. While she thought the name Henry was “cute,” the couple chose Wilberforce for a very specific reason. “We named him after William Wilberforce, who was a key player in abolishing the slave trade throughout the British Empire,” Ben, 21, explains. “He was the type of person when you knock him down, he’d get back up stronger than before, so that was something I really admired.”

As for their firstborn’s reaction to his new sibling, Spurgeon is still getting used to the idea. “We thought, ‘This is going to be so adorable,’ but he wasn’t really sure about it,” says Jessa. “He thought Henry was a toy, so he wanted to touch his eyes and put his finger in the baby’s mouth.” Adds Ben: “He has no concept of being soft.”

The family is already settled in with a new routine: Jessa feeds the baby, and Ben changes all the diapers. “He’s gotten so good he could do it with his eyes closed!” Jessa boasts. And while the Seewalds are loving life as a family of four, they are already getting serious about expanding their brood to, well, Duggar-like numbers. “It will be a little while since we just had a baby, but adopting and fostering to adopt is very much in our hearts,” says Jessa. Now they’re looking for a house big enough to accommodate everybody. “We just need a little more space,” Jessa says with a laugh. “We’re always checking the market!” ●

Her Daughter's Miraculous Recovery

THE FORMER CHILD STAR'S 8-YEAR-OLD IS ON THE MEND AFTER NEARLY DROWNING IN A DEVASTATING ATV ACCIDENT

By JEFF NELSON

While many Americans watched the Super Bowl, Jamie Lynn Spears was living through a mother's nightmare. On Feb. 5, Spears's daughter Maddie, 8, accidentally drove an ATV into a pond at the singer-songwriter's home in Kentwood, La. Spears, 25, and Maddie's stepdad, Jamie Watson, watched helplessly as paramedics pulled the submerged child from the vehicle's safety netting and seat belt—taking a few minutes to bring her to the surface. Maddie was rushed to Children's Hospital in New Orleans, where her mother, Watson and father Casey Aldridge, 27, kept vigil. "They sat around her bed, talked to her, held hands and prayed," a friend of Aldridge tells People. Because of the length of time Maddie spent underwater, "everyone was really worried because they didn't know how bad the brain injury was. They didn't know if she'd ever be the same. They cried a lot."

"She's a very happy, content little girl," Spears (with Maddie, left, on an ATV in a 2016 Instagram; and right, in May 2016) told People in June. "There's nothing more a parent could ask for."

'They have their Maddie back. That's all that matters'

—A FRIEND OF CASEY ALDRIDGE, MADDIE'S DAD

Amazingly, Maddie regained consciousness two days later with no obvious signs of neurological damage. "Everyone knows this was a God thing," says the friend, who adds that "Maddie is getting stronger" since going home on Feb. 10. "It's truly a miracle," her pop star aunt Britney, 35, tweeted. The entire clan has found solace in their faith. "We are truly blessed," Jamie Lynn wrote on Instagram. The next day she shared Bible verses. "Be joyful always," she tweeted. "Give thanks in all circumstances." —WITH REPORTING BY STEVE HELLING

READY FOR THE OSCARS!

Is he prepared for the toughest gig in show business? The talk show host is rehearsing his jokes (look out, Matt Damon) and getting suited up for Hollywood's big night

By ELIZABETH LEONARD

Watch the People & EW Red Carpet Live Oscars preshow on Feb. 26 at 5 p.m. ET/2 p.m. PT on the People/Entertainment Weekly Network (PEN). Go to people.com/PEN or download the app on your favorite device. Then watch our Red Carpet Fashion Wrap-Up after the Oscars!

Jimmy Kimmel makes no bones about it: Matt Damon should be afraid. Very afraid. When the Jimmy Kimmel Live! star takes the stage to host the 89th Academy Awards on Feb. 26 (airing live on ABC at 7 p.m. ET), he says Damon—who is nominated as a producer for Manchester by the Sea—will surely be the brunt of a few jokes. “He got nominated, unfairly obviously, for producing,” says Kimmel, 49, who has had an infamous 11-year faux feud with Damon. “You know he doesn’t produce anything. Maybe he produces garbage at home.” But the rest of the star-studded crowd can rest easy. Kimmel, who has previously hosted the Emmys and the American Music Awards, says he doesn’t plan to make anyone uncomfortable. “You have to make the audience laugh,” he says. “That’s the key.”

What was your first Oscars?

I snuck into the Governors Ball—I think it was in 1995. I was the morning host for Kevin & Bean on KROQ radio. Kevin and I put on our tuxedos and we figured if we got there early enough, we would become part of the scenery. We hung around for nine hours; then the Oscars ended and everyone started filing in, and they did a security sweep and kicked us out. But we made a U-turn and went right back in. We sat down with John Travolta and we told him we snuck in, and he was laughing. He got the waiter to bring us food.

When did you get the call with the hosting offer?

I was coming back home from vacation in Hawaii. I was in the airport. I looked like I’d seen a ghost. Then I had to tell my wife, who had just suffered through three months of Emmy anxiety with me.

How did your wife [Molly McNearney, cohead writer on Jimmy Kimmel Live!] react?

She wasn’t thrilled. I think she cursed. She’ll be backstage with me writing jokes.

How do you balance Oscar prep and your day job?

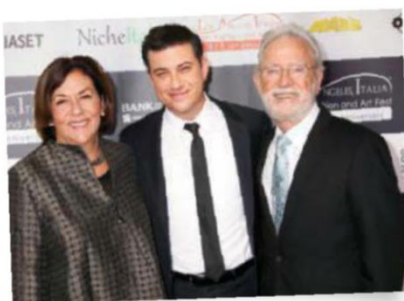

It’s not easy. It takes what little free time I have. My daughter [Jane, 2] takes a big

JIMMY’S OSCAR SQUAD

Billy Crystal

Kimmel sought advice from the nine-time host: “We got used to him being great, like the Patriots winning the Super Bowl.”

Mom and Dad

His parents, Joan (she made PB&J sandwiches for the Emmys audience) and James, will be at the show, but “she won’t be cooking.”

Ellen DeGeneres
Kimmel says DeGeneres was among his favorite Oscar hosts: “I think she did a phenomenal job.”

“It’s like a family affair,” Kimmel says of having pals Ben Affleck and Matt Damon expected in the audience.

chunk out of it, and then the Oscars take the rest. From a psychological standpoint, it’s hard to focus on your Wednesday-night show when you know you have this big show coming up. It’s almost like if you knew you’re going to the Super Bowl and you have to finish the regular season along the way.

Are you nervous to host the Oscars for the first time?

Yeah! Anybody who tells you they don’t care what people think is probably lying. I talked to Billy Crystal, and he still gets nervous before every performance. If he still gets nervous, by all rights I should get nervous.

Do you have a favorite Oscar moment?

The thing I remember more than anything is when Roberto Benigni walked over the seats. It was the Oscars version of Michael Jackson moonwalking. It was magical.

Are you going to sing and dance?

Unless someone brings a gun out and forces me to sing and dance like Yosemite Sam, I probably won’t. It should be a relief to all.

How will you deal with politics?

I haven’t decided exactly how much I will dwell on that. A lot of it depends on what happens that week. There are one, sometimes three new, interesting stories coming out of the White House every day, it seems—so who knows what will be happening?

You’re so successful already. Why say yes to such a high-pressure gig?

I guess the only way to determine the answer to that question is in hindsight. If it went well it makes perfect sense that you said yes, and if it doesn’t, it makes none. I guess it’s a challenge. I’m not crazy about challenges. I don’t like skiing. I don’t like tests. I’d rather take the path of least resistance—but it’s a career opportunity you can’t ignore. For a comedian, there are very few gigs of this caliber.

What are you doing after the show?

I will probably go to a party or two, unless it’s some kind of a disaster, and then I’ll go to the hospital. I’ll either go to Vanity Fair or Cedars-Sinai. ●

NEW JERSEY TEEN MURDER PLOT

DEADLY FRIENDS?

Two months after Sarah Stern's mysterious disappearance, police say that she was murdered—and arrest her two closest friends By STEVE HELLING

The Victim
Sarah Stern was close friends with the suspects, even going with Taylor to the prom (inset).

The Suspects
Authorities say that Preston Taylor (left) and Liam McAtasney (right) had been planning the attack for at least six months.

In the halls of New Jersey's Neptune High School, Sarah Stern would often act out skits with best friends Preston Taylor and Liam McAtasney. The pals had been inseparable since they met growing up on the Jersey Shore; the trio even went to the prom together, with Stern and Taylor as one of the couples in a group that included McAtasney and his date. "They knew each other's locker combinations," says classmate Morgan Randall. "They were that close." So when Stern's car was found abandoned on a bridge near her home Dec. 3, it wasn't surprising that Taylor and McAtasney joined the search for the 19-year-old artist. "They helped search bushes and posted flyers on Facebook," says Randall. "They said they were looking for answers."

Chillingly, police say they knew the answers all along. On Feb. 1 McAtasney and Taylor, both 19, were charged in connection with Stern's death. Police say the duo plotted to rob their friend of thousands of dollars before strangling her. At a Feb. 7 hearing, prosecutors alleged that after McAtasney killed Stern, he called Taylor, and the two teens dumped Stern's body into the Shark River, abandoning her car with the keys still in the ignition. McAtasney is charged with first-degree murder, while Taylor is charged with disturbing human remains and hindering prosecution. McAtasney's attorney Chuck Moriarty tells People his client "maintains his innocence." (At press time, neither has entered a plea.) "It's just unbelievable," Sarah's father, Michael Stern, told the Asbury Park Press. "Unfathomable. Deplorable. Disgusting."

While the teens are being held without bond, those who knew Stern are struggling to process their loss. "It's sad to think of what she went through," says Randall. "But if [McAtasney and Taylor] are responsible for this, that makes it even worse. The betrayal? That's devastating." ●

JERRY O'CONNELL

The actor is raising his girls by going back to the basics

Jerry O'Connell, 43, and his wife, Rebecca Romijn, 44, have very simple goals when it comes to their 8-year-old fraternal twin daughters Dolly and Charlie: Make sure they're polite. "That really goes a long way. Looking people in the eye when you greet them, saying their name, saying 'thank you' and 'please,'" says O'Connell, who also acknowledges the privilege his kids experience growing up in a "beautiful" suburb of Los Angeles. "The craziest thing we have to deal with is traffic," he says. "I want to make sure they have gratitude. Just having gratitude and being polite is a great foundation to start from. That, and doing their homework!"

GAVIN MacCALL

Built His Daughter a 'Ninja Warrior' Course

Gavin MacCall and his daughter Lylah were watching their favorite show, NBC's American Ninja Warrior, when Lylah, 4, suddenly jumped up and made a ninja move of her own—over a living room chair. “She ran up, put her arms on it and hopped up and over it,” says Gavin, 40. Inspired, he decided to build Lylah her own obstacle course, complete with cargo net, zip line and balance beam challenges, in their backyard in Northglenn, Colo. “She has always loved to jump and climb,” he says, “and I’m out there doing everything with her. I’ve been able to become a kid again.” This past October he posted a video on Reddit of Lylah tackling the course—with his own running commentary and an audience of her stuffed-animal friends—that’s since received more than a million comments. “I sat there one night for two hours and read comments, and I was in tears,” says MacCall, a photographer for a boxing company. “It’s crazy how this is inspiring people to want to do this themselves. She’s having fun, but what really comes across is that I’m having fun with her.”

MacCall and Lylah (now 5) on the course. “It’s teaching her confidence and how to try again [even when] something looks difficult,” he says.

KEN JEONG

The Dr. Ken star celebrates his daughters' individuality

Raising fraternal twins is not a one-style-fits-all experience for Ken Jeong. "They say, 'Acting is reacting,' and I think it's the same for parenting," says the ABC star, who is dad to Alexa and Zooey, 9. Jeong, 47, was thrilled when Zooey showed interest in comedy and guest-starring on Dr. Ken, but he's equally happy that Alexa became a competitive gymnast. "No one in our family had ever done gymnastics, but my wife [Tran Ho] and I want our daughters to find their own passions," he says. "We encourage them to be unique in their own ways."

DWAYNE JOHNSON

The movie star balances life with a teenager—and an infant daughter

Dwayne "the Rock" Johnson was just 29 and at the height of his wrestling career when he became a father for the first time. "I was always on the road, splitting my time," People's reigning Sexiest Man Alive, 44, says of early life with daughter Simone, 15, and ex-wife Dany Garcia. But now that the Jumanji and Baywatch star has added Jasmine, his 1-year-old daughter with girlfriend Lauren Hashian, to the family, "it's been this awesome, interesting, fascinating balance," he says. "I have this amazing, beautiful teenager who teaches me and her amazing, beautiful baby sister."

RON ALSTON JR. Starts Every Day with a Pep Talk

➡➡ For Ron Alston Jr., 27, daily pep talks are a family tradition. Every morning he and his dad would stand together at the mirror and recite positive affirmations—"I'm kind," "I'm smart," "I treat people with respect." Now the Warsaw, Va., single dad is continuing the tradition with his daughter Aliya, 3. In September he posted a video of one of their chats on his DFG (Destined for Greatness) Facebook page that's since received some 17 million views. "I want her to have self-worth, no matter what she does," he says. "I also want her to have something to look back on, to have a bond with me when I'm no longer there."

Alston talking with Aliya. "It's important for little girls to hear this from their dads," he says, "because we're their first [male] role model."

TRACY MORGAN

The Fist Fight star says he’s raising his daughter to be well-rounded

➡ Tracy Morgan’s daughter Maven, 3, has him wrapped around her little finger—and he loves it. “I’ve got three sons [Gitrid, 31, Malcolm, 29, and Tracy Jr., 25, with ex-wife Sabina], but people always told me, ‘There ain’t nothin’ like having a daughter,’” says Morgan, 48. “It changed me as a man.” For the comedian, who survived a horrific car crash in 2014, and his wife, Megan Wollover, 30, it’s also been important “to teach her that money doesn’t grow on trees,” he says. “You want something from us? You will earn it. She knows that.” As for a future in the entertainment industry? “I’ll be pointing her in the direction of Harvard or Yale,” he says. “We need a lawyer or a doctor in this family.”

PHILIPPE MORGESÉ

Teaches Dads to Be Hairstylists

For single dad Philippe Morgesé, “bad hair days” took on new meaning when his daughter Emma turned 4. “That’s when her hair started getting out of control,” says Morgesé, 34. He solved the problem by learning to braid Emma’s hair before bedtime—and turned their nightly styling sessions into a bonding experience. “It’s a big deal,” says the Daytona Beach, Fla., dad. “We use the time to talk about our days, find out the silly stuff.” In 2015 he began sharing his styling tricks on daddydaughterhairfactory101.com. “A daughter who has a close relationship with her father grows up confident and ready to take on the world,” he says.

DEVON STILL

NFL player Devon Still's Biggest Play? Helping Daughter Leah Beat Cancer

➡ “Every day feels like Father’s Day to me,” says NFL player Devon Still, 27, whose bond with his 6-year-old daughter Leah turns even the simplest moments into a reason to celebrate. In June 2014 Leah was diagnosed with stage 4 neuroblastoma, a cancer that threatened her life more than once. Throughout her battle—including debilitating rounds of chemo and weeks-long hospital stays—Devon put his NFL career on a back burner, spending nights on a fold-out cot in her room and even shaving his head when she lost her hair. “It really changes your outlook on life,” he says of their ordeal. “It makes you appreciate the little things.” Thankfully, Leah’s been in remission for nearly two years. Last August she started first grade and loves being “a normal kid again,” says Still. Even when his new gig with the Houston Texans keeps him away from Leah—she lives with her mother near Philadelphia to be near her doctors—the pair FaceTime every day. “I can still talk to my daughter and hear her call me Dad,” says Still. “It’s a simple word that really lights me up.”

MARIO LOPEZ

The busy Extra and radio host prioritizes time with his kids

“I am overworked and underslept, but that all goes away when I get home and hear little feet running toward the door yelling, ‘Daddy!’” says Lopez, 43, who likes to spend his Sundays at church and by the pool with daughter Gia, 6, son Dominic, 3, and wife Courtney, 35. Formerly a fan of L.A.’s velvet-rope scene, Lopez says becoming a parent completely changed his priorities. “It wasn’t just about me anymore,” he says. “I became responsible for these little humans that are mine. It made me want to work harder and get focused and do the right things, so the right things could happen for me and my kids.”

NEIL PATRICK HARRIS

The TV star wants to create a better world for his children—and yours

Neil Patrick Harris wants to make sure his 6-year-old twins have a plethora of “legendary” memories.

“My parenting style is more camp counselor than maternal nurturer,” says Harris, 43, who is dad to daughter Harper and son Gideon with husband David Burtka, 41. But between family excursions, the Lemony Snicket’s A Series of Unfortunate Events star works with nonprofits like Global Citizen, which tackles civil rights, environmental and health issues. “When you have a new generation that you’re helping raise, it’s clear that it’s not only our lifetime that we need to be aware of,” he says, “but theirs and their children’s.”

Last Halloween Josh Rossi, 32, a commercial photographer from Salt Lake City, decided to do something “super”—special for his 3-year-old daughter Nellee. Inspired by the movie Batman vs Superman: Dawn of Justice, he produced an eight-part photo series of Nellee dressed as Wonder Woman. (For Valentine’s Day he cast her in her own version of Beauty and the Beast.) “The message is empowerment for her,” says Rossi, who spent $1,500 on the one-day shoot. “The best part for me was that I could take what I know and do something cool for my daughter.”

Nellee as Wonder Woman. “She watched the trailer of the Wonder Woman movie, like, 50 times,” says Rossi (inset, with Nellee), who directed the shot as crew members held Nellee up.

The Good Morning America cohost shows his kids the importance of a good work ethic

➡ When Michael Strahan retired from the NFL in 2007, he questioned how he was going to continue to be an example for his children. “My twins were 3, and I thought, ‘I can talk to them about hard work and show them highlights from my football days, or I can show them in the real world,’” says the Fox NFL Sunday analyst and MSX apparel owner, 45, who is dad to daughter Tanita, 25, and son Michael Jr., 22 (not pictured), with first wife Wanda Hutchins and fraternal twins Isabella and Sophia, 12, with second wife Jean Muggli. “My kids are the reason I wake up and work so hard,” says Strahan. “It’s not to pay for things. It’s to be an example.”

The singer hopes his daughter is an unabashed daddy’s girl

“My wife’s already a little jealous knowing that daughters usually like their dad a little more,” says John Legend, 38, whose wife Chrissy Teigen, 31, welcomed baby Luna last April. Lea Michele's Style Rules

THE ACTRESS AND SINGER, WHO WILL RELEASE HER SOPHOMORE ALBUM, PLACES, THIS YEAR, REVEALS HER TIPS FOR DRESSING WITH CONFIDENCE

The 30-year-old has worked with stylist Brad Goreski (left) for more than two years. "He really knows what works for my body," she says.

1 TAKE CHANCES

When I picked the purple Emanuel Ungaro gown that I wore to a Golden Globes afterparty this year, it was because my stylist told me it was fun. I put it on and I thought it was amazing. He has inspired me to try different things.

2 SHOW OFF SOME SKIN

My red carpet style is pretty classy, though I like to be a little sexy every now and again. It's about balance. If I'm going to have a short dress, I'll have long sleeves. Or if I'm going to have a bare top, I'll have a long skirt.

I LIKE TO BE COMFORTABLE. I DON'T LIKE TO WEAR HEELS ALL THE TIME. I'M FROM NEW YORK—I NEED TO HAVE MY WALKING SHOES!

Michele loves to post her exercise routines (and gear!) on Instagram for her 4.4 million followers.

3 STOCK UP ON ACTIVEWEAR

I own more workout clothes than real clothes. It's gotten to the point where I can't close my closet door! But I wear them all. For me, it's important to get clothes that are cute but also affordable, which I find at Kohl's [she's the retailer's new Motivation Market wellness ambassador].

4 FLAUNT WHAT YOU'VE GOT

I love my neck and my chest, and I love accentuating them, which is why I never shy away from a plunging silhouette. I know I work well with it. It's about finding parts of yourself that you think are beautiful and making them shine.

5 CONSIDER YOUR HEIGHT

I'm 5'2½", so I try to stay away from anything that has a lot of fabric because it drowns me. Also, it doesn't photograph as well because I'm shorter.

6 PREPARE FOR THE WORST

I know that if I can get through a fitting dancing to Ariana Grande without a wardrobe malfunction, then I'll probably be good for the night. But sometimes [with high slits] you have to pray to the fashion gods and hope for the best—then be ready to call your dad and let him know what may have happened.

In that sense, what makes you feel good? Being loved and giving love. That, and every now and then Faith will say, "Momma, you look so pretty." Then I glow. There's nothing like hearing your daughter say that.

How does your outlook on beauty continue to evolve?

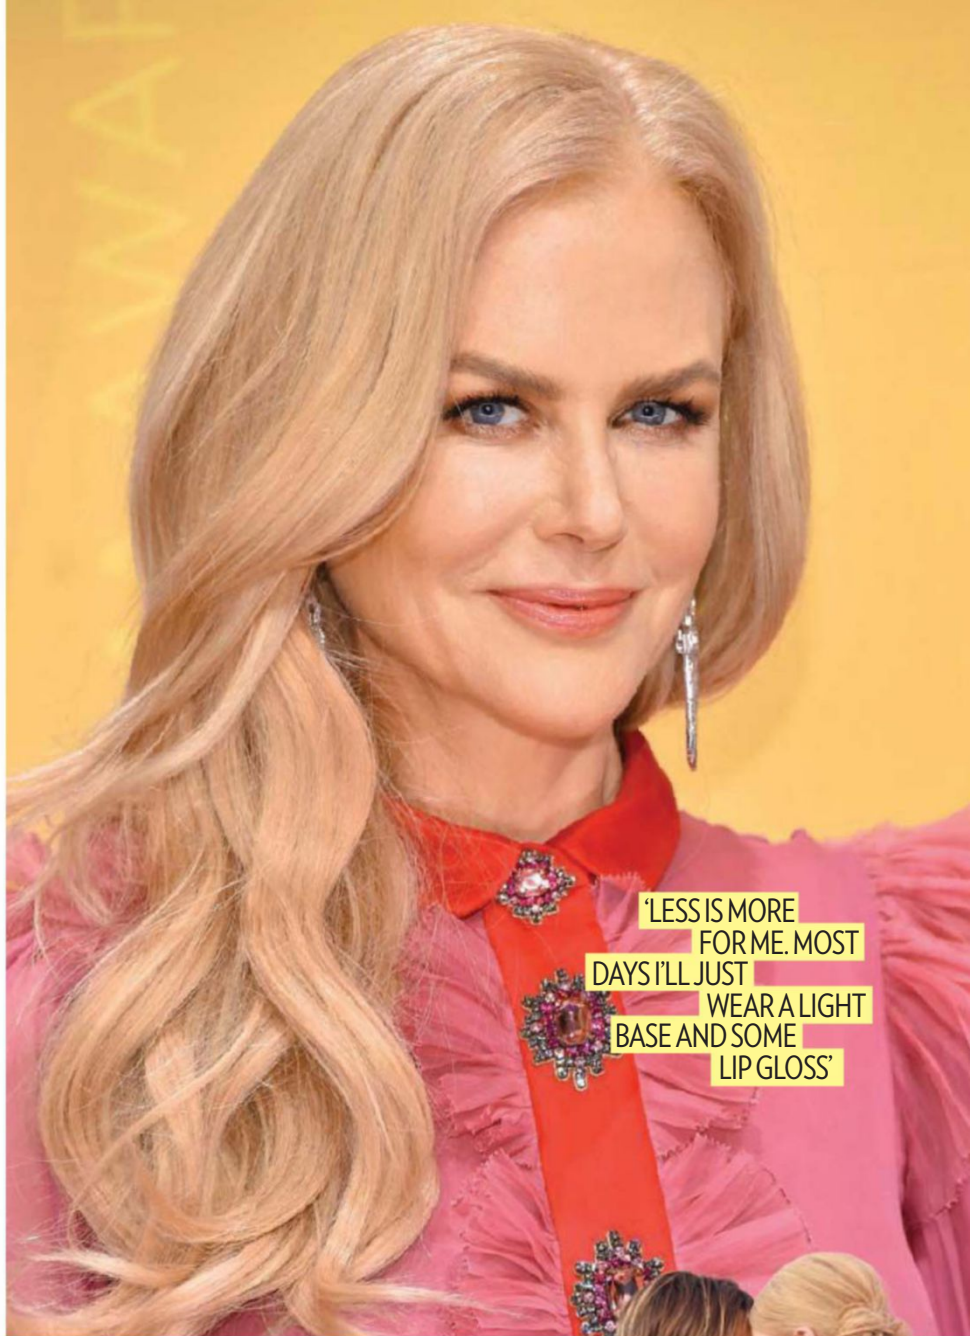

Well, I am trying to embrace my curl more. That's partly because Faith has curly hair, and I really want to encourage her never to straighten it. Also, it's easier for me.

Salted Caramel & Chocolate Hazelnut Popcorn

THE ACTRESS SHARES A SNACK FILLED WITH 'SWEET AND SALTY GOODNESS' FROM HER NEW PARIS POPCORN SHOP YUMMY POP

- ¾ cup light brown sugar
- ½ cup unsalted butter
- ¼ cup light corn syrup
- ½ tsp. kosher salt
- 1 tsp. vanilla extract
- ½ tsp. baking soda
- ¾ cup hazelnut-chocolate spread
- 10 cups popped popcorn

1. Preheat oven to 250°. Line 2 rimmed baking sheets with parchment paper.
2. Combine brown sugar, butter, corn syrup, salt, vanilla and baking soda in a medium saucepan. Cook over medium-high heat, stirring occasionally, until mixture is boiling and thickens slightly, 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from heat, and whisk in hazelnut-chocolate spread.
3. Place popcorn in a very large bowl. Gradually add caramel mixture, stirring gently, until popcorn is evenly coated.
4. Spread popcorn evenly on prepared baking sheets. Bake in preheated oven, stirring occasionally, until mixture begins to harden, 20 to 30 minutes. Remove from oven, and let stand until hardened and crisp, 5 to 10 minutes.

Sweet Pea & Bacon Crostini

THE CHEF OF THE ACADEMY AWARDS' GOVERNORS BALL MAKES A PARTY-PERFECT APPETIZER

- $\frac{1}{2}$ baguette, cut diagonally into 12 ($\frac{1}{2}$ -in.-thick) slices
- 3 tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil, divided
- $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. kosher salt, divided
- $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. black pepper, divided
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup shelled fresh or frozen sweet peas
- 1 tbsp. chopped fresh mint
- 1 tsp. lemon zest plus 1 tsp. fresh juice (from 1 lemon)
- 1 cup fresh ricotta cheese, divided
- 2 bacon slices, cooked and crumbled

1. Preheat oven to 350°. Arrange baguette slices on a baking sheet; brush with 2 tablespoons of the oil; sprinkle evenly with $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon each of the salt and pepper. Bake in preheated oven until browned and crisp, about 10 minutes.

2. Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil over high heat; add peas. Cook until bright green and tender-crisp, about 30 seconds. Drain and transfer peas to a large bowl of ice and water; let stand 5 minutes. Drain.

3. Process mint, zest, juice, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of the ricotta and remaining $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt in a food processor until smooth; add peas. Pulse just until mixture comes together but is still slightly chunky, about 10 seconds.

4. Spread each baguette slice with 1 tablespoon pea mixture. Top each with 2 teaspoons of the remaining ricotta. Drizzle slices evenly with remaining 1 tablespoon oil. Sprinkle evenly with crumbled bacon and remaining $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon black pepper.

Whiskey-Cheese Fondue

'THIS IS ONE OF THOSE DISHES THAT GETS EVERYONE EXCITED,' SAYS THE AUTHOR OF THE DINNER COOKBOOK

- 1 small garlic clove, halved
- 1 cup dry white wine
- 12 oz. Gruyère cheese, grated
- 12 oz. aged cheddar cheese, grated
- 1½ tbsp. cornstarch
- 2 tbsp. whiskey
- 1 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
- ½ tsp. kosher salt
- ¼ tsp. black pepper
- ¼ tsp. freshly grated nutmeg (optional)

1. Rub cut side of garlic halves over the inside of a large Dutch oven or heavy-bottomed saucepan, covering bottom and halfway up sides; discard garlic. Add wine, and bring to simmer over medium-high heat.

2. Meanwhile, toss together grated cheeses and cornstarch in a large bowl.

3. Add a handful of cheese mixture (about ½ cup) at a time to the simmering wine, stirring until cheese melts before adding next, until all cheese is added. Reduce heat to medium-low, and cook, stirring constantly, until cheese is completely melted, about 10 minutes. Stir in whiskey and lemon juice; cook, stirring often, until mixture is bubbling, 1 to 2 minutes. Stir in salt, pepper and, if desired, nutmeg. Serve immediately with chopped vegetables, sliced meats or cubed bread for dipping. If the fondue cools down and starts to stiffen, warm the mixture over low heat for 1 to 2 minutes, stirring until melted.

Baked Ranch Chicken Bites

THE KITCHEN COHOST AND PRESENTER AT THE SOUTH BEACH WINE & FOOD FESTIVAL SERVES UP A CRUNCHY DISH TO FEED YOUR CROWD

- 2 cups lightly salted popped popcorn
- 2 tbsp. unsalted butter
- 1 cup panko bread crumbs
- 3 tbsp. finely grated Parmesan cheese
- 3 large eggs
- 2 tbsp. whole milk
- ¼ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp. kosher salt
- 1 tsp. onion powder
- ½ tsp. dried dill
- ½ tsp. garlic powder
- ½ tsp. black pepper
- 1 lb. boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into 1-in. pieces

1. Preheat oven to 450°. Place an oven-safe wire rack on a baking sheet, and spray rack with cooking spray.

2. Process popcorn in a food processor until finely ground, about 30 seconds. Melt butter in a large skillet over medium. Combine panko and ground popcorn in skillet; cook, stirring often, until panko is golden brown and toasted, 2 to 3 minutes. Transfer to a shallow dish; stir in grated cheese.

3. Whisk together eggs and milk in a second shallow dish. Combine flour, salt, onion powder, dill, garlic powder and pepper in a third shallow dish.

4. Coat chicken pieces in flour mixture. Dip chicken in egg mixture, shaking off any excess; dredge in popcorn mixture.

5. Place chicken pieces in a single layer on prepared wire rack. Bake until a thermometer inserted in thickest portion registers 165°, about 12 minutes.

Serves: 6

If You Purchased BrainStrong Products, You May Benefit From A Proposed Class Action Settlement

If you purchased BrainStrong Products between January 1, 2011 and March 4, 2016, this Notice is to inform you of a proposed class action settlement that could affect your legal rights.

Amy Jovel and Michael Yee v. i-Health, Inc., Case No. 1:12-cv-05614-JG-MDG

What Is This Notice About? A proposed settlement has been reached in a class action lawsuit pending in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York. The lawsuit alleges violations of consumer protection and warranty laws, and claims that i-Health, Inc. ("i-Health") misrepresented certain benefits of a group of supplements sold as "BrainStrong" brand products in the United States. i-Health denies all of these allegations. The Court did not rule in favor of Plaintiffs or i-Health. Instead the parties agreed to a proposed settlement in order to avoid the expense and risks of continuing the lawsuit.

Am I A Member Of The Class? You are a Settlement Class Member if you purchased a BrainStrong Product with Docosahexaenoic acid (including BrainStrong Toddler, BrainStrong Kids, and BrainStrong Adult) in the United States between January 1, 2011 and March 4, 2016. Excluded from the Settlement Class are i-Health and its parents, past and present, subsidiaries, divisions, affiliates, assignors, predecessors, successors and assigns; the past or present partners, shareholders, managers, members, directors, officers, employees, agents, attorneys, insurers, accountants and representatives of any and all of the foregoing entities; any government entities; and persons who purchased BrainStrong Products for the purpose of resale.

What Does The Settlement Provide? Subject to Court approval, the parties have agreed to a settlement ("Settlement") under which you may be entitled to receive a cash payment. If the Settlement is approved by the Court, i-Health will provide members of the Settlement Class with cash or optional voucher awards for the BrainStrong Products s/he purchased. Settlement Class Members who submit Proof of Purchase with their Claim Form, will receive a full monetary refund of the actual price paid for the BrainStrong Products purchased. Settlement Class Members who submit a Claim Form with Proof of Purchase that does not state the actual price paid, will receive a monetary refund of the average retail price for the BrainStrong Product purchased. Settlement Class Members who submit a Claim Form without Proof of Purchase, will receive their choice of either a monetary refund of $4.00 in cash or a $6.50 voucher toward the purchase of any i-Health product.

What Are My Rights? You have a choice of whether to stay in the Class or not, and you must decide this now. If you stay in the Class, you will be legally bound by all orders and judgments of the Court, and you will not be able to sue, or continue to sue, i-Health as part of any other lawsuit involving the same claims that are in this lawsuit. This is true even if you do nothing by not submitting a claim.

1. You can accept the Settlement. If you wish to receive the benefits under the Settlement, you MUST submit a Claim Form by June 19, 2017. You can obtain a Claim Form: (1) on the Internet at www.brainhealthdhasettlement.com; (2) by calling the Claims Administrator at 1-888-283-6979; or (3) by mailing a written request for a Claim Form including your name and mailing address to: Jovel v. i-Health Claims Administrator, PO Box 40007, College Station, Texas 77842-4007. If you fail to timely submit a Claim Form and do not exclude yourself from the Settlement, you will be bound by the Settlement but will not receive any benefits of the Settlement.

2. You can object to the Settlement. If you believe the Settlement is unsatisfactory, you may file a written objection with the Clerk of the Court for the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York and send copies to the following Counsel representing the Class and i-Health: Plaintiffs' Counsel: Patricia N. Syverson, Esq., Bonnett Fairbourn Friedman & Balint, P.C., 2325 E. Camelback Rd., Suite 300, Phoenix, Arizona 86016; i-Health's Counsel: Frank Spano, Esq., Hogan Lovells US LLP, 875 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10022. Your written objection must be postmarked no later than April 28, 2017.

3. You can "opt out" of the Settlement. If you do not wish to participate in this Settlement, you must provide written notice so indicating. Such notice must include your name, address, and telephone number. You must mail the request for exclusion to the Settlement Administrator at Jovel v. i-Health Claims Administrator, PO Box 40007, College Station, Texas 77842-4007 or submit a valid exclusion form online through the Settlement Website. The request must be postmarked or submitted online no later than April 28, 2017. Please be advised that if you request exclusion from or "opt out" of the Settlement, you will not receive any benefits under the Settlement, and will be responsible for any attorneys' fees and costs you incur if you choose to pursue your own lawsuit. The Fairness Hearing. On May 19, 2017, at 11:00 a.m., the Court will hold a hearing in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York to determine: (1) whether the proposed Settlement is fair, reasonable and adequate and should receive final approval; and (2) whether the application for Plaintiffs' attorneys' fees and expenses (up to $250,000) and an incentive award (up to $1,000 each) to the two Class Representatives should be granted. Objections to the proposed Settlement by Settlement Class Members will be considered by the Court, but only if they are filed by April 28, 2017, as explained above. Settlement Class Members who support the proposed Settlement do not need to appear at the hearing or take any other action to indicate their approval.

How Can I Get More Information? If you have questions or want a detailed notice or other documents about this lawsuit and your rights, visit www.brainhealthdhasettlement.com. You may also contact Class Counsel by emailing psyverson@bfbf.com, or by writing to: Jovel v. i-Health Claims Administrator, PO Box 40007, College Station, Texas 77842-4007, or by calling 1-888-283-6979. Please do not contact the Court or Clerk for information.

Allison Holker and her husband, Stephen "tWitch" Boss, 34, resident deejay on The Ellen DeGeneres Show, moved into their first house together in Los Angeles a year ago; they cleaned up. "Our house was a mash-up of old pieces that we were ready to let go of," says Holker, 29. HomeGoods designer Amy Lipnis stepped in to help the couple, who met while competing on So You Think You Can Dance in 2010, achieve a welcoming vibe for their four-bedroom, three-bath space. "They had some solid pieces that anchored the decor," Lipnis says. "We were able to work those into the new design with patterned rugs and pillows to keep it feeling unique." Now the couple along with their 9-month-old son Maddox and Holker's daughter Weslie, 8, from a previous relationship, have room to "just relax and laugh together," says Holker. Will Arnett

THE ACTOR, 46, IS THE CAPED CRUSADER IN THE LEGO BATMAN MOVIE

Last guilty pleasure

I've been working overseas and always have early call times. But I recently watched a hockey game at 1 in the morning, even though I knew I had to work. I was just like, "Screw it." It's more of a pure pleasure.

Last perfect day off

I took my two kids [Archie, 8, and Abel, 6] to the Harry Potter studio tour in London. I usually try to sleep as much as I can on my days off, but they're huge Harry Potter fans, so just being with them and walking around the set was the best.

Last time I binge-watched a show

I can't remember the last time I didn't! If you don't, everyone thinks you're a weirdo. You don't hear anybody go, "I watched one episode of Black Mirror last night. And I plan on watching another episode next Sunday night!" Like, who does that?

Last time I was starstruck

Athletes usually do it to me. I have a friend who played in the NHL for years, and I make him introduce me to hockey players. But I met Michael Keaton. I'm such a huge fan of his—I mean, he's the first Batman on film. I just think he's so awesome.

Last irrational fear

Turbulence! I didn't used to be a nervous flier, but now I am. Sometimes I'm like, "Just remember, it's like bumps in the road." And then other times I'm like, "Oh, for the love of Christ!" I don't really have a biggest fear though. My biggest hope is that my kids are happy. If my kids are happy, everything else is gravy to me.
