AshleyMadison.com Owner to Pay $1.6 Million Fine Over Data Breach

Ruby Life Inc. (operator of the Toronto-based AshleyMadison.com dating site) has agreed to settle with Federal Trade Commission and state charges that they deceived consumers and failed to protect 36 million users profile information in relation to a July 2015 data breach. The agreement states that Ruby Life (formerly known as Avid Life Media Inc.) is to implement a comprehensive data-security program. The operators will also have to pay a total of $1.6 million to settle FTC and state actions.

"This case represents one of the largest data breaches that the FTC has investigated to date, implicating 36 million individuals worldwide," FTC chairwoman Edith Ramirez said.

"The global settlement requires AshleyMadison.com to implement a range of more robust data security practices that will better protect its users' personal information from criminal hackers going forward."

According to the FTC complaint, until August 2014, operators of the site lured customers with fake profiles of women. Only users who paid to access the site could use all of its features.

Ruby Life, according to the FTC, assured users their personal information was private and secure. But the FTC alleges the security of AshleyMadison.com was not up to par.

According to the complaint, Ruby Life had no written information security policy, no reasonable access controls, inadequate security training of employees, no knowledge of whether third-party service providers were using reasonable security measures, and no measures to monitor the effectiveness of their system security. Intruders accessed the companies' networks several times between November 2014 and June 2015, but due to their loose data-security practices, the defendants did not discover the intrusions.

In addition to the provisions prohibiting the alleged misrepresentations and requiring a comprehensive security program, the proposed federal court order imposes an $8.75 million judgment which will be partially suspended upon payment of $828,500 to the FTC. If Ruby Life is later found to have misrepresented its financial condition, the full amount will immediately become due. An additional $828,500 will be paid to the 13 states and the District of Columbia.

The FTC worked with a coalition of 13 states — Alaska, Arkansas, Hawaii, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee, and Vermont — and the District of Columbia to secure a settlement against Ruby Life and affiliated companies Ruby Corp. and Avid Dating Life Inc.

The agency also worked with the Canadian and Australian governments on this case. The FTC filed the complaint and final order in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

Author M.Wheeler Launches New Illustrated Short Story, ...Preceded by Chaos Vol. 0

Author M. Wheeler announces the release of the first installment of his illustrated short story ...Preceded by Chaos Vol. 0, an intoxicating and often manic account of the two friends' bumpy trip across Europe to find two former partners in crime.

Wheeler's tale sets forth when the author's protagonist, Dr. Mitchell Weaver, tries to reconnect with his old medical school buddies when a past scandal - with serious legal implications - threatens to resurface... "unauthorized access to pharmacy stores, blackmail and worse, connecting back to our time studying... the dragnet had closed enough that the only suspects left were us."

Vol. 0 represents the first chapter in a series loosely based in part on Wheeler's own freewheeling life experiences as well as stories experienced by colleagues; a druggy mix of powerful exposition and dynamic sequential illustrations that lures you into its shadowy world where Mitchell finally realizes that many of his prior indulgences and vices no longer suit his current life of responsibility.

The premise of the series is to follow Mitchell - starting from Volume 0 - back in time to his youthful 'chaotic' years (in the upcoming Book of Chaos), then flash-forward to his transformation into an evolved, conscientious man (Book of Changes).

According to Wheeler, the series' short-format stories are designed to "satisfy the love of reading for people who won't commit to reading a novel", while collaborator Brian Bicknell's illustrations impressively serve to "enhance the story and help move the plot," adding "I wanted to fuse the beauty of the illustrations in the graphic novel with the depth of character, thought and emotion found written in the story."

...Preceded by Chaos is available now at precededbychaos.com, Amazon.com and Books-A-Million.com.

GREG LANSKY RELEASES MAJOR UPDATE ON VIXEN.COM

VIXEN.com and multi-award winner director, adult industry visionary, innovative influencer, Greg Lansky officially kicks off the holiday season with one of the most impressive adult scenes of the year, "Girls Day Out". The highly anticipated feature scene starring the biggest adult stars in the world: Riley Reid, August Ames and Abella Danger, was released recently.

"Riley Reid called this performance 'the most epic shoot of my life. Greg Lansky is constantly raising the bar in the adult industry reaching the level of mainstream shoots. Greg rented not only a boat to shoot on the ocean but he also rented a helicopter so that August Ames, Abella Danger and myself can shoot with it right behind us! It was so insane!"

Director Greg Lansky went to levels rarely seen to create the vibe of a multi-million dollar music video.

The feature scene takes off with a high-flying speedboat over choppy ocean waters, and if that wasn't enough to ignite the senses, a helicopter from above takes the action to a whole new level, captivating the actresses' attention. Everyone involved returns to land to continue the celebration, building into a foray of heart-pulsing action. This is as big as it gets!

Vixen is a high-end erotic studio and an online community that produces the best, most impressive and most watched movies, period. With already over 2 million monthly unique visitors, Vixen makes adult movies from its collection of partners, high caliber stars its site Vixen.com one of the most watched and adult site ever created...

Greg Lansky Chief Creative Officer said, "this feature scene is very special to me. I wanted to create something unique and also pay homage to the incredible adult photos from the 80's and 90's. Riley, Abella and August were simply incredible. These women are so dedicated and talented. They are true artists and I truly feel blessed to be able to collaborate with them. Our brands have truly attracted fantastic people who refuse to create cheap, boring adult films. Without the belief of our team that we could create something never been done before, we would not be where we are today."

Abella Danger was thrilled to be involved with one of the finest shoots of her entire career. "Some things in life, you really will probably only experience once. I can honestly say shooting this scene for Greg Lansky with Riley Reid & August Ames was definitely a once in a lifetime dream! To be on a luxury yacht with a helicopter about ten feet behind us was so amazing!!!!!! We had so much fun, I still remember the smell of the ocean, and everyone on the crew was incredibly caring as always. I'm so lucky and honored Greg chose me to be a part of this, especially because it ended with what I think was an extremely hot & passionate orgy! I am so thankful to Greg Lansky and the entire Vixen team for treating me to one of the best days ever."

THE FIRST EVER 3D-SCANNED SCROTUM SCULPTURE NOW IN CROWDFUNDING ON INDIEGOGO.COM

Adult toy entrepreneur Brian Sloan is known online for crowdfunding the Autoblow 2, Slaphappy & 3Fap to the tune of $400,000, but now he's offering shoppers a product meant not to spice up the bedroom, but instead a product he promises will liven up any room anywhere. Wall Balls is his new piece of home décor made from the 3d scanned scrotum of the third place winner (Big Ben) of the 2015 World's Most Beautiful Balls Contest. His Infomercial explains the product's finer points.

The 2015 Balls Contest, like the Vagina Contest that came before it, received online media attention around the world including on Huffington Post, Complex, Maxim, Mic, Cosmopolitan, and dozens of other websites. In the contest, hundreds of men uploaded photos of their scrotums, which were rated online on a scale of 1-10 stars by hundreds of thousands of people around the world. The third place winner travelled to a 3D scanning facility which awkwardly performed a scan of his scrotum, using a $30,000 piece of equipment that captured it in perfect detail, down to .01mm.

Wall Balls is a life-sized electroplated fiberglass replica sculpture of Big Ben's scrotum hanging out of the fly of his jeans. The sculpture measures 12 inches tall by 8 inches wide by 5.5 inches in depth. The rear of the sculpture is flat for easy wall mounting. Sloan's Indiegogo pitch explains that the product is meant for people "who are awesome or who want to be awesome" and at the same time want to celebate the scrotum's role in holding, cushioning and protecting the testicles.

Sloan stated, "The thing that really inspired me to create Wall Balls as a piece of home décor is the story behind it. Ben, a 58 year old man in Cleveland might never have been a champion before but he had the gall to submit a photo of his scrotum to a contest on the Internet and he emerged a winner. Ben lived his life unaware that his scrotum was the third most attractive scrotum in the entire world. This product stands as a reminder to all of us that we have undiscovered potential and by placing Wall Balls in our homes it will serve to inspire and remind us that almost every one of us, is in some way, great.

Go here for the Indiegogo campaign page: www.indiegogo.com/projects/wall-balls-3d-scanned-scrotum-in-shiny-fiberglass#/. Early backers will pay only $59. Retail price will be $169.

HARRIETSUGARCOOKIE.COM EXPLORES THE INS & OUTS OF UK'S CONTROVERSIAL 'PORN BILL'

Men's adult lifestyle website HarrietSugarcookie.com examines the pros and cons of the UK's controversial new Digital Economy Bill in a series of posts aimed at educating UK porn viewers about the government's proposed age verification regulations.

The site - one of the UK's largest, with monthly traffic of over 300,000 visitors each month - recently posted "Why the UK's Age Verification Laws are Good for HarrietSugarcookie.com", delving into the Bill's benefits from a strictly business perspective.

"This regulation increases the cost and complexity of launching an independent adult site... shutting out potential new rivals," the article states. "Age verification actually lowers our hosting costs... filtering our traffic that does not have the ability to pay, thus increasing our bottom line while someone else picks up the bill."

While HarrietSugarcookie.com may benefit, the UK's adult industry as a whole could suffer. A new article, "The UK Porn Ban, Goodbye Oral, Hello Orwell!", further looks at how the Bill could affect security, privacy and the personal rights of the estimated 25 million Internet porn watchers across the country.

The Bill is vague, but the phrase 'restricting access to online pornography' allows the government to ban specific sex acts or performances, as well as look into viewers' browsing history. Harriet-Sugarcookie.com is more succinct: "Now they've set up even more ways of censoring material they deem inappropriate. The new censorship is hidden within the new Age Verification law they will be implementing.

HarrietSugarcookie.com founder and performer Harriet Sugarcookie will post more in-depth articles in the coming weeks about the selected clauses in the Digital Economy Bill and its progress through Parliament.

The Origins of 10

by Lucien Gunn

We all know technology is a great thing, especially since it literally places so much at our fingertips; and that especially includes sex. We can access, buy, participate, and view practically anything having to do with sex – which is a far cry from the days of looking at our friend's dad's copy of Playboy under the covers with a flashlight. But are we as hip as we think we are? This psychedelic explosion of sex-at-our-fingertips can make it seem as if we are the most sophisticated generation ever; yet, sex has been around for quite a long time – literally thousands of years – so we may not be as advanced as we would like to believe. With that said, we decided to share with you the origins of ten common sexual devices that have been around for a lot longer than any of us may have imagined.

SEX DOLLS Ersatz ladies first came into existence in the 1600's, when French sailors are reported to have arranged a collection of rags and old clothing in such a supposedly curvaceous manner as to make them resemble a woman (hard to look at Raggedy Ann the same way again). But not until vulcanized rubber was created and patented in 1844, was it possible to actually make the first sex doll as we know it today – with the first inflatable version being invented around 1904.

BUTT PLUGS This device was invented by Frank E. Young in 1892, but not actually marketed until several years later around the turn of the 20th century. "Young's Rectal Dilator" was a 4½ inch-long device that was sold for nearly 40 years to doctors, who promoted their use as a cure for hemorrhoids (a clever marketing idea if ever there was one). Eventually forced off the market in 1938 for false advertising, butt plugs have since gone on to find their true, more enjoyable calling.

gasm), brought about by the regular administration of medicinal massages (masturbation) – performed by hand; vibrators, then, helped to alleviate the chronic wrist fatigue suffered by many doctors (seriously).

CONDOMS By modern definition, the first reliable record of condom use appears around 1564; primitive by today's standards, this condom was a linen sheath soaked in chemicals and then left to dry before use. It was invented by Gabrielle Falloppio as a means to combat the French Disease, which is what most Europeans called syphilis at the time. His invention was such a life-saving device, that parts of the female reproductive organs were later named in his honor – fallopian tubes.

PENIS RING This simple and extremely useful device was invented sometime around 1200 A.D. in China, and was used primarily by nobility to help the men in keeping up their all-important impregnation duties with wives and concubines. And as if to show that they had a flair for design as well, the Chinese created the initial penis rings from the eyelids of goats – with the eyelashes still intact (not joking).

VIBRATOR The first electric vibrator was invented in 1880 by Joseph Granville to help doctors treat female hysteria – an illness that was marked by "excessive moisture in the vagina" as one of its symptoms. Interestingly enough, the treatment for this ailment was the inducement of paroxysm (or-

GEISHA BALLS Although the origins of Geisha Balls are uncertain, they appeared in Asia sometime around 500 A.D., and seem to have been an extremely popular device. Also known as Burmese Bells, Rin No Tama, Venus Balls or more commonly today as Ben Wa Balls, they were originally used to pleasure men (we know not how) – until women found out it could also heighten their sexual experience.

PENIS ENHANCEMENT While this may seem like something relating more to modern times, it actually appears in the Kama Sutra from around 300 B.C. In one chapter, it tells of making the penis larger by rubbing it with wasp stingers – which seems highly suspect, and highly painful. But it also makes the suggestion of using an Apadravyas made of gold, ivory, silver or wood to “supplement length or thickness” (of the penis); in other words, this is the first-known description and suggested use of a strap-on.

LUBE Olive oil has always been big business – and, apparently, not just for cooking. That it happens to be a benefit to our dietary intake is definitely without question, but it seems to have been a benefit to sex as well, by being used as a lube in Ancient Greece. While no detailed records exist concerning its actual use in this manner, Aristotle's History of the Animals refers to olive oil being used to make the physical act of sex smoother, and pregnancy far less likely.

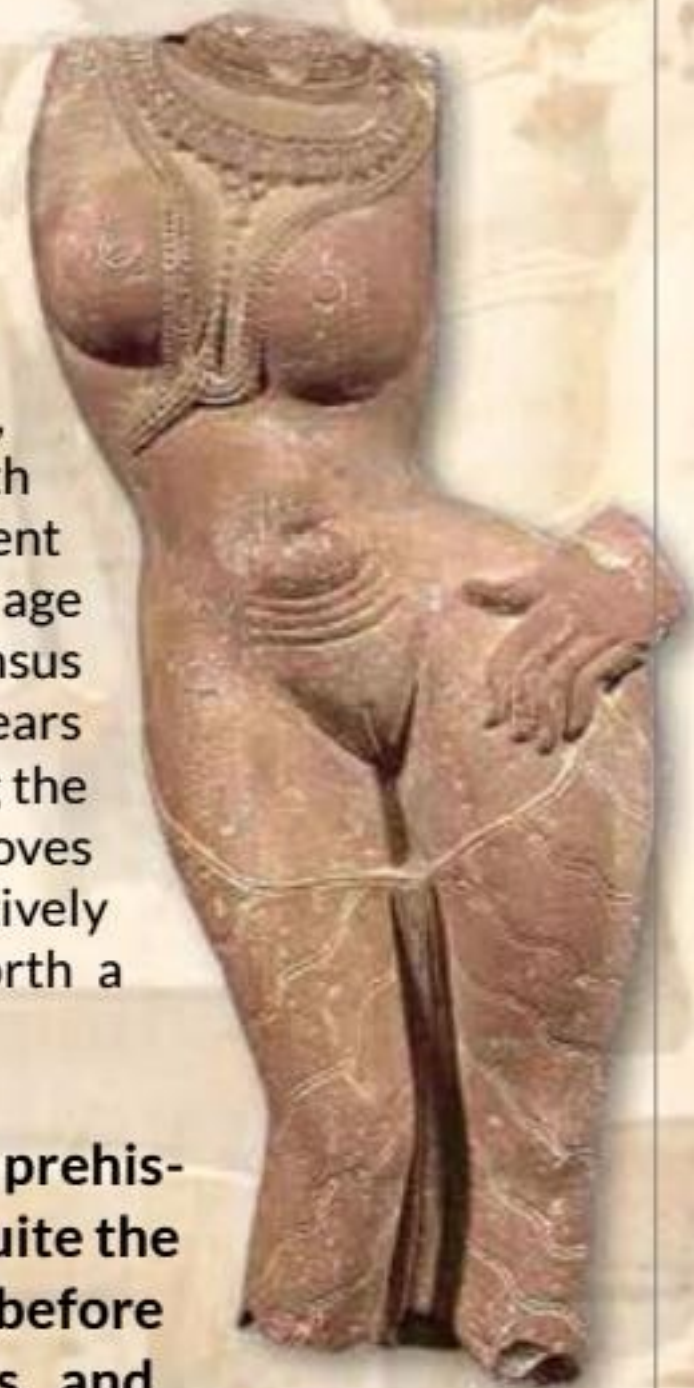

DILDO This device has been as much a part of human existence as tools, weapons, and fire; in fact, it is such a prominent device that it even pre-dates the advent of agriculture by 13,000 years. The oldest known dildo found by archeologists dates back 28,000 years, and is a rather large-in-girth, eight inch, well-polished stone found in Germany. Not only does this prove that size mattered to Stone-Age women, but that even in the face of prehistoric life, they found time for a bit of pleasure.

PORNOGRAPHY This is oldest form of all sexual aids or devices, and dates back so far that some archeologists estimate it even pre-dates religion. The oldest known piece of prehistoric erotica is carved from a mammoth tusk, and represents a female figure with extremely exaggerated or prominent sexual parts; although its exact age is unknown, the educated consensus places it at more than 35,000 years old. And while definitely preceding the written word, this erotic statue proves that even prehistoric man instinctively knew how much “a picture is worth a thousand words.”

So it clearly seems that since prehistoric times, humans have had quite the preoccupation with sex – even before the advent of religion, politics, and the ability to grow food. But when we stop to think about it, it really comes as no surprise, because like the dawning of mankind, sex is the first thing that dawns upon us literally every day – especially every morning for men. In fact, sex has been the single, atavistic, motivating factor in our existence; and without a doubt, it has been the very the reason why we have managed to continue our existence to this day. Sex is such an obviously pervasive and integral part of our lives, that it becomes a head-scratching wonder why it is that religion and government do their very best to control everything having to do with sex – instead of simply minding their own business. After all, where would any of us be without sex?

HAPPY NEW YEAR,

everyone, and welcome to another month of Cocktail Corner. From talking to quite a few of you, it seems that your holiday celebrations were merry, festive, happy – and safe. I also have to thank those of you who made it a point to compliment me on last month's featured drinks; all of your comments were awesome. I know that I say it all the time, but I never get tired hearing how much all of you enjoy the cocktails I present for your drinking pleasure. After all, without all your interest and appreciation, what I do wouldn't matter much – so thank you.

I also want to give a big-time shout out to all my bartending friends who made it with me through the holidays – both working and drinking; so to John, Diane, Adam, Jimmy, and of course, the one and only, Brooke, thank you for making all the holiday celebrations memorable. And since we're all pretty much in the hangover stage from the holidays, I thought a bit of history about bourbon would be the perfect medicine to cure what ails us. Besides, I actually got into a discussion about bourbon during one of the holiday parties with a guy named, Phil, who was just full of questions, and I don't know about you, but I can definitely use a small break from drinking – for a little while.

Even though bourbon is not that old of a spirit – it was first produced sometime in the late 1700's – there isn't a lot of information about when it was first distilled, especially since record-keeping wasn't exactly a priority during this time. What we do know is that the major reasons Kentucky is so ideal for making bourbon is that the soil is rich in nutrients for growing corn, it has clean water naturally filtered through limestone, and it's home to 17 different varieties of oak trees to make barrels. And even though bourbon can be legally produced anywhere in the U.S., the majority of all bourbon is produced in Kentucky – its historical home.

In order for a spirit to be called Bourbon Whiskey, it has to follow certain criteria: it must be made from a grain mixture that's at least 51 percent corn (the other 49 percent of the mash is usually rye and barley, with some producers using wheat); it has to be distilled two times; and it has to be aged in new oak barrels that are charred. There's no specified time for aging, but any bourbon that's aged for a minimum of two years – with no other additives or spirits added – can be designated as "Straight Bourbon Whiskey;" blended bourbon usually contains added flavoring, coloring, and un-aged neutral grain spirits. Also, any bourbon that has a stated age on the bottle must be labeled with the age of the youngest whiskey used.

The person recognized for creating the first Kentucky Whiskey is a Baptist Minister named, Elijah Craig; but while he did distill and sell whiskey, there's no historical record to verify he was the first to do so. Records do suggest, though, that because he was a minister, people very likely used his name to counter the prohibition movement of the late 1800's – which routinely demonized alcohol. So with so few records of any kind, the only thing we're sure about is that by 1790, there were quite a few people involved in making of Kentucky (bourbon) whiskey: Hancock Lee (Buffalo Trace), Jacob Beam (Jim Beam), Basil Hayden (Old Grand-Dad), and Elijah Pepper (Old Crow), among others.

WRITTEN BY LUCKY G.

And while all of these persons eventually went on to establish commercial distilleries, the first record of any such operation belongs to Evan Williams, who opened his commercial distillery in Louisville in 1783.

By 1785, the whiskey produced in the area of current-day Bourbon County was commonly known as Kentucky Whiskey, and it was a differently made product from the one we know today. Bourbon was actually invented sometime in the 1830's when the Scottish-born distiller, Dr. James Crow, experimented with using a portion of the residue known as setback (sour mash) from one batch of mash as the starter for the next one – very much how sourdough bread is made; today, every whiskey produced as bourbon is a sour mash whiskey ... And while it seems likely that Bourbon got its name from the county where it's produced, there's also the possibility that it was named after Bourbon Street in New Orleans – which was the primary market for most of the whiskey produced in Kentucky. Who knows, with a Baptist minister linked to its creation, there just might have been the notion that being made and sold in two different locations with the same name was a sign of divine origin.

So there you go, Phil, and everyone else who's interested in how bourbon came to be "America's whiskey." Obviously, this is just a broad overview about bourbon, but it pretty much covers the important points ... Okay, I know I said no cocktails, but how can I give you the story about bourbon, and then leave you dry? So just think of these next two cocktails as drinking the "hair of the dog" – you're welcome.

Millennium ... 2½ oz Wild Turkey – ½ oz. peach schnapps – 3 dashes Angostura bitters – lemon zest garnish ... Served in a chilled cocktail glass or on the rocks, this very tasty drink was invented in 1999 to mark the beginning of the new century.

Esquire #1 ... 2¼ oz. Maker's Mark – ¾ oz. Gran Marnier – ¾ oz. orange juice – 2 dashes Angostura bitters – orange zest garnish ... Also served in a chilled cocktail glass or on the rocks, this is a roughly 100 year-old cocktail that drinks as good now as it did then.

So there you have it, my friends – a small history lesson and a couple of drinks to top it all off. I actually have to be honest and say that bourbon isn't exactly my favorite spirit, but it does make some tasty cocktails that I really like to enjoy – the two that I listed, the Boulevardier (found in our November issue), and quite a few others. But it's like I always say to anyone who asks what my favorite cocktail or alcoholic spirit is; I like any cocktail that's well made, because a well-made cocktail is a good cocktail – no matter which alcohol is used. So that means even if it's something you're not too fond of, in the right cocktail, you just might like it. And speaking of liking something, Brooke wants to try out some bourbon recipes; so until next month, here's to this year being as good as, or better than last year.

LOCAL LEGAL BY HOWARD SNADER

In the last 6 months, I have been contacted and retained on several cases where my clients are facing prosecution for misconduct involving weapons. In the majority of these cases, the misconduct involves my client being prohibited to possess a gun because of their prior felony conviction, or worse, because they are currently on probation, and the court had not yet restored their right to possess a weapon.

Misconduct with a weapon is set forth in Arizona Revised Statute 13-3102. There are multiple means to commit misconduct with a weapon. Some of the basic felonies are defacing a deadly weapon (removing the serial number), when contacted by police and subsequently lying about the possession of the weapon, carrying a knife other than a pocket knife either concealed or within his immediate control in a vehicle, possessing a deadly weapon on school grounds, and using a gun when committing a violent felony.

However, in the majority of my cases, my client is arrested for possessing a gun when his right to possess a gun has not been restored. In most cases, the ONLY defense is that they did not and could not have reasonably known the weapon was on their person, their residence or vehicle. The State only needs to prove that you knew or should have known the weapon was present.

When accused of being a prohibited possessor, the real issue is whether one is prohibited and whether one is in possession.

WHO IS PROHIBITED FROM POSSESSING A GUN?

The legislature has defined prohibited possessor under several circumstances. Generally, the more common types of prohibited possessors are noted as follows:

1. Those previously found by court order to be a danger to themselves or others;
2. Those convicted of a felony, adjudicated delinquent;
3. Those currently on probation pursuant to a felony conviction or previously convicted of a DV crime;
4. AS TO ALL the above, one remains prohibited until their rights are restored

DEFENSES TO BEING CHARGED WITH PROHIBITED POSSESSION

The majority of my cases arise from police contact and subsequent search. The police contact is normally a traffic stop, but is sometimes based on personal contact on the street. On other occasions, it may be the result of a probationary search.

A: CHALLENGE THE STOP/DETAINDER

Your first line of defense is determining whether officers had grounds to initiate contact. For a traffic stop, officers must have a reasonable belief that you have committed a traffic violation. For a "street contact," again, officers must have some legal grounds to initiate contact.

For either of these situations, your first defense is to not consent to a search. If ever detained, remember you are only required to identify yourself. I always recommend limiting the information provided to that on your driver's license. Just give them your name, address and biographical information. Anything beyond that, politely indicate you refuse to answer or request an attorney.

B: CHALLENGE THE SEARCH

Officers are permitted to search a vehicle incident to an arrest, prior to it being towed, or with a warrant. But the usual search is solely based on my client's giving their consent. DO NOT CONSENT TO ANY SEARCH OF YOURSELF, YOUR VEHICLE OR RESIDENCE.

Make them get a warrant. Make them describe their probable cause. Make the officers do their job. You do not need to make it easy for them.

If this is a probationary search, you do NOT have a right to refuse the search.

C: MAKE THE STATE PROVE POSSESSION

Possession may be actual or constructive. If the gun is actually on one's person, that is actual possession. Most of the time, the gun is found in the car, in the closet, etc... anywhere except on the person. When the gun is not on the person, possession is considered constructive. Constructive possession requires the prosecutor prove that you had access to the weapon. They will show that you knew or should have known the gun was present. That is all done by circumstantial evidence and argument.

Where I noted before that you never consent to a search, similar advice applies here: NEVER ANSWER ANY QUESTIONS ABOUT THE GUN OR YOUR KNOWLEDGE ABOUT IT.

SENTENCING IS SUBSTANTIAL.

Prosecutors take any gun crime seriously. Regardless of whether you are probation eligible or facing prison, understand that prosecutor's are normally seeking substantial punishment.

Despite my comments above, I have had success defending these cases. Sometimes, I can obtain dismissals. Other times, the best result is a negotiated plea to a reduced offense or punishment. These cases are difficult, but defensible.

Your best defense, at a minimum, is to consult with an experienced attorney.

Sexual partner: man, woman or both?

I am married to a wonderful man who let's me have girl partners as well since I am bisexual.

What's your favorite part of your body?

I love my jaw structure. It is very defined, which can lead to ignorant comments from people thinking that a defined jawline is a masculine feature, but ask any photographer... A distinctive jawline and cheekbone structure make for the best portraits.

Favorite body part on a man?

I love a muscular back. I love it when a man flexes and I can see the wings from his back musculature "drools".

What can you not live without?

My vape pen, marijuana, and music.

Do you have any beauty tips?

Don't use drugs, smoke cigarettes, or drink heavily. Start using anti-age cream in your early twenties. Wear little makeup and always wear sunscreen. I am almost 30 and I get told I look like I am in my early 20s. Drink lots of water because it is good for the skin also!

Tell us something unique about yourself.

I have always been a masochist and now as an adult I channel my inner demons through tattoo therapy, suspension, and BDSM.

Quest

What do you do to relax, hobby?
Netflix and chill while smoking my herb

Where might we run into you if we wanted to meet a girl like you?
I am an erotic dancer at Eden Cabaret in Tucson every weekend. Come see me perform! :)

Whats a favorite place for going out with friends or on a date?
Since I don't drink alcohol, I rarely ever go out to bars. But I do love going to metal shows and rocking my dark little heart out :)

On a date, what might you wear if you really wanted to make an impression?
Something that is form fitting, shows off my legs, and my cleavage.

What would you expect the guy to wear?
Hopefully black clothing since I am attracted to metal-heads and goths. It's not really about what they wear but more so hygiene. Did they trim their facial hair? Do they smell nice? Do they have bad breath? Etc.

What is your favorite drink?
Moscato D'Asti if I had to pick an alcoholic drink. Otherwise, give me all of the water!

What advice can you give women about balancing sexuality and being taken seriously?

No matter what you do people will judge you. The patriarch has always demonized sexually liberated and educated women. Ignore them and do what YOU want because the most important person in your life is you.

GET FIT WITH ANASTASIA PROPHETE

Let's do it!

HEY FIT FAM,

It's me the new and improved tiny titan Trainer back after the holidays to get you started with your goals.

Usually everyone's New Year's resolution is to lose weight... well guess what!? I am going to help those goals become a reality. First things first head to your pantry, look in it and see what you have. If majority is junk food, then guess what? You won't be able to reach your goals. Best thing to do is give it away or throw it away. Yes, I know it sounds crazy, but if there's temptation around you you're more likely to fail; sad but true.

Now that you have got rid of those bad things it's time to replace them with good wholesome foods. Grab a jacket (unless you're in a hot place) and let's hit the stores. It's important to get whole grain items rather than white because white is stripped and bleached which removes most of the nutrients you need. When it comes to fruit try and stick to lower calorie and sugar items such as strawberries, blueberries, and raspberries. Cantaloupe is another good food for a healthy snack. Proteins like chicken, lean steak, fish and even tofu is needed for a balanced diet.

Now here is the part everyone loves (especially me) CARBS. Yes, we need to eat "good carbs" this includes whole grains, brown rice, karbolyn (a carbohydrate in powder form that's used as a faster way to get carbs in you). Potatoes, yams, sweet potatoes, quinoa, brown rice, white rice and couscous are example of carbs that can round out your diet. Add fats like avocado, olive oil, coconut and nuts to meals. Veggies, veggies, veggies and more veggies. Picking out dark green leafy veggies helps with digestion (due to the fiber in it) and they also have certain vitamins to help with muscle growth as well as helping to fight off many diseases too!

I can not stress this enough: If you don't eat enough to refuel your muscles they will not grow and you will retain more water as well as the fat you're trying to lose.

Hopefully that little guide helped. Until next time, drink tons of water and let's hope to see you soon!

XXX,

Your Tiny Trainer

A New Beautiful You

I was extremely apprehensive walking into Dr. Martin's office, as I had never had any type of surgery before. He and his staff made me feel extremely comfortable about the surgery and my decision to go through with it. They were all very professional and always concerned with how I was doing both before and after the procedure. I went out of state a couple weeks shortly after my procedure and Dr. Martin still kept in close contact with me to be sure everything was going as planned.

Being a nurse that cares for surgical patients, he made my first surgical experience as a patient a smooth and successful one and I would recommend Dr. Martin and his staff to anyone for the highest quality of care.

AVN NOMINATION PARTY

The AVN 2017 season started on a warm Thursday night in November at the Avalon in Hollywood, California. A small group of adult actors and actresses walked the first red carpet of the season with anxious anticipation of the opportunities of the night and the following months and years to come. Excitement filled the air.

The AVN nomination announcements have a snowball effect on everyone's career who earns an AVN nomination and/or an AVN award. Will they make the most of it, will they shine like never before, or will they burn out? There is opportunity merely in an AVN award nomination. Winning the actual AVN award is an even larger ripple effect, but a nomination can have just as much of a positive impact on a career in the adult industry if used to its fullest advantage.

The AVN Nomination Party in Hollywood was just that: a party of adult industry people, both old and new, who unapologetically live in the grey. Freedom is the overwhelming feeling that surges through the air at these events. The love of not living by the rules of society and the fear of being ordinary brings us all together.

"I'm looking forward to AVN 2017, because for me this is where all the magic happened. AVN 2016 was the beginning of Sully Savage. So I'm extremely excited to return and see all my favorite people, meet new people, and make new connections." ~Sully Savage (@SullySavage)

The AVN Awards are often referred to as the Oscars of porn. The awards themselves range greatly with almost 100 categories. From Best New Starlet of the Year, Male Performer of the Year, Best Actress, Best Male Newcomer, Best Gay Solo Video, Best Cinematography, Best Selling Title of the Year, to Fan Voted Awards there is a niche for everyone. The talent in front of the cameras and behind the cameras are recognized in this worldwide celebration of the adult entertainment industry.

"I find the Fan Votes to be more applicable to see which girls are doing great with their branding. I think the fans are the ones who truly pick the stars!"

~Shawna Lenée (@ShawnaLenéeShow)

The AVN Awards and Expo will conclude late this month in Las Vegas at the Hard Rock Hotel. This who's-who event of the adult industry will bring out the brightest stars. Let the adventure and awards season begin, along with the New Year. Enjoy these pics from the party, and tweet me your top picks @ZiFiStripClub.

LAUGH SPOT

This letter was sent to the School Principal's office after the school had sponsored a luncheon for seniors. An elderly lady received a new radio at the lunch as a door raffle prize and was writing to say thank you.

Dear Lions Bay School,

God bless you for the beautiful radio I won at your recent Senior Citizens luncheon. I am 87 years old and live at the West Vancouver Home for the Aged. All of my family has passed away so I am all alone. I want to thank you for the kindness you have shown to a forgotten old lady.

My roommate is 95 and has always had her own radio; but, she would never let me listen to it. She said it belonged to her long dead husband, and understandably, wanted to keep it safe.

The other day her radio fell off the nightstand and broke into a dozen pieces. It was awful and she was in tears. She asked if she could listen to mine, and I was overjoyed that I could tell her to fuck off.

Thank you for that wonderful opportunity. God bless you all.

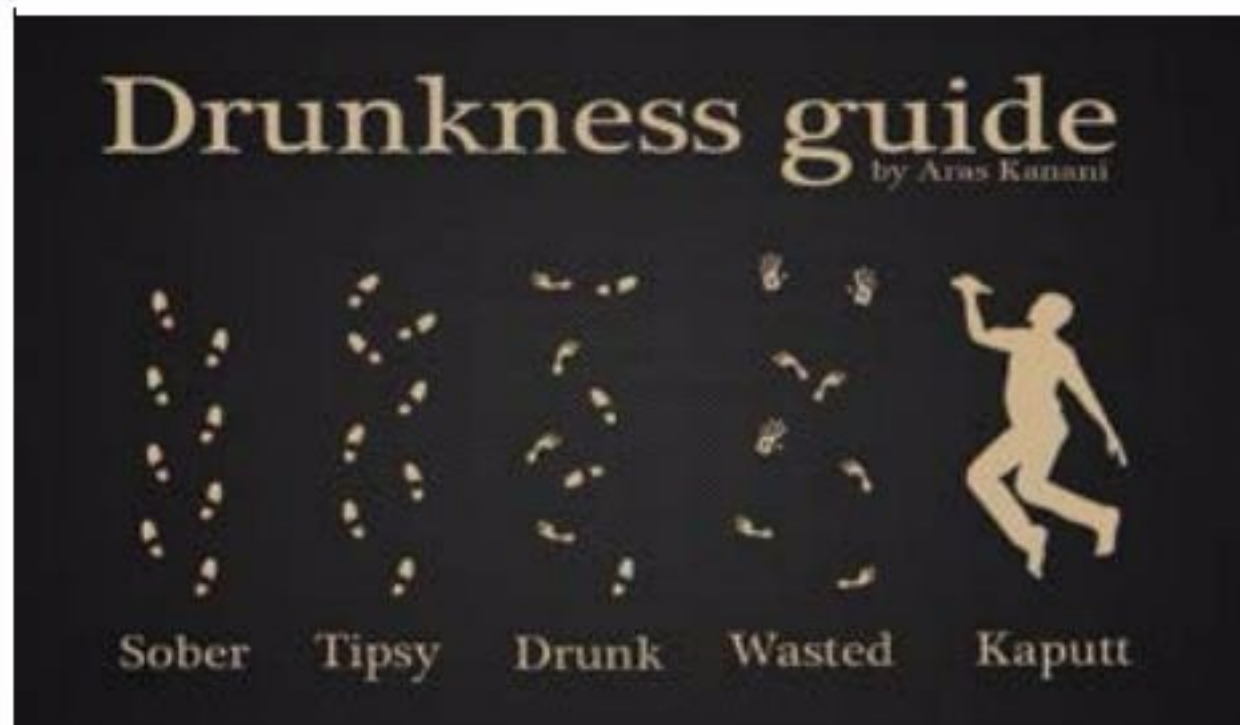

Sincerely,
Edna

On New Year's Eve, Daniel was in no shape to drive, so he sensibly left his van in the car park and walked home. As he was wobbling along, he was stopped by a policeman. "What are you doing out here at four o'clock in the morning?" asked the police officer.

"I'm on my way to a lecture," answered Roger.

"And who on earth, in their right mind, is going to give a lecture at this time on New Year's Eve?" enquired the constable sarcastically.

"My wife," slurred Daniel grimly.

An elderly man goes into his doctors office for an annual physical. After a while, the doctor comes out and says, "I'm sorry Bill, but we have discovered you have a condition which only allows you another 6 weeks to live."

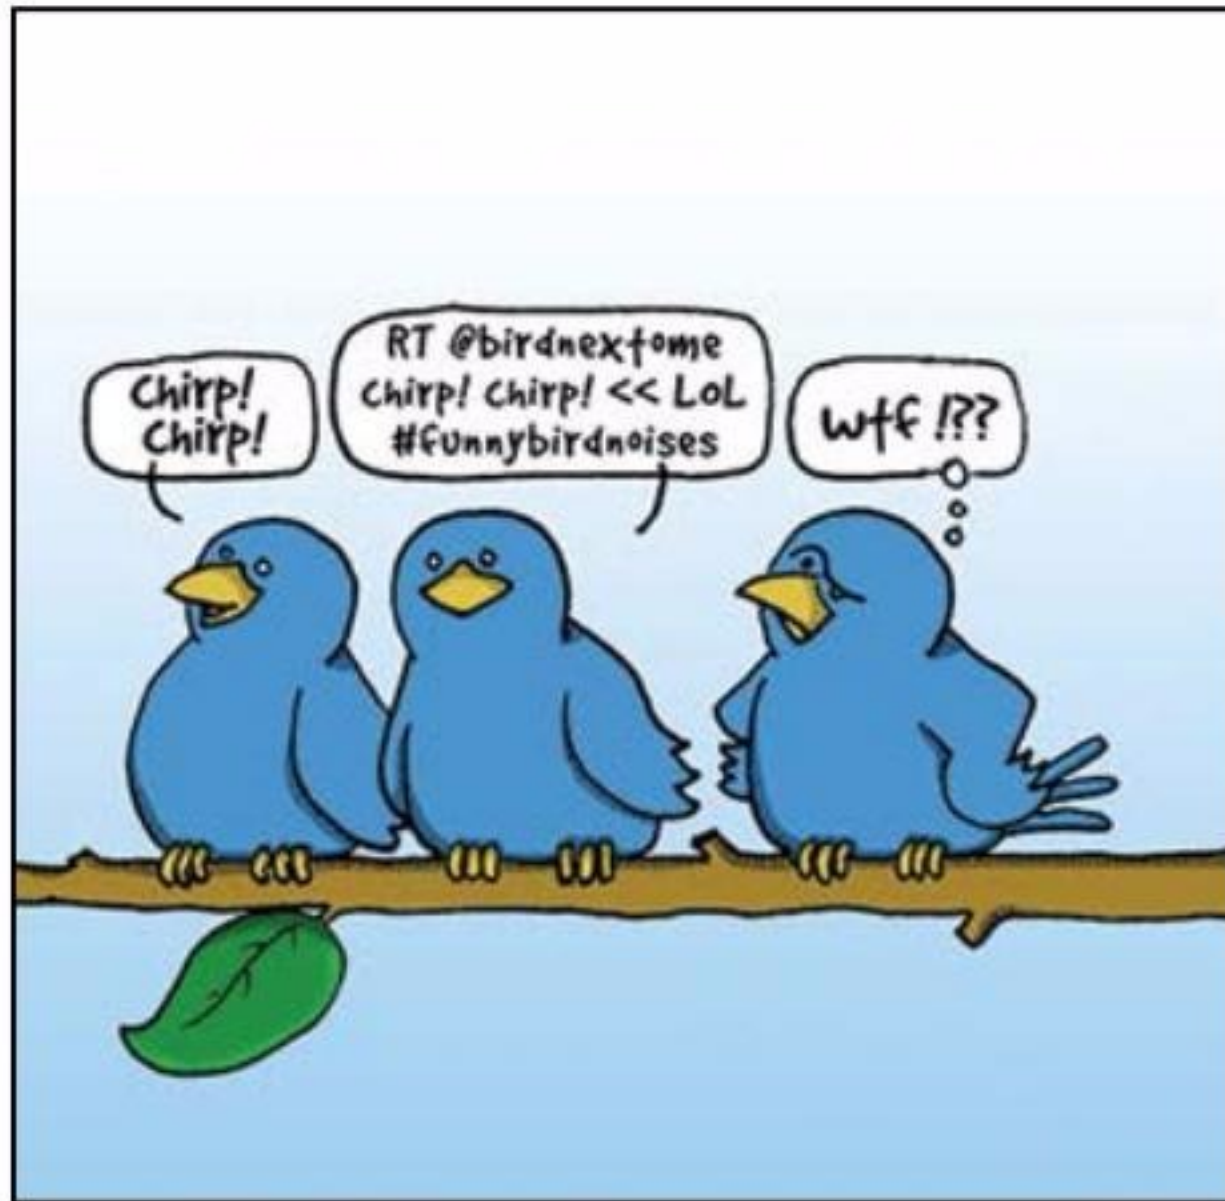

"But Doctor," Bill replied, "I feel great. I haven't felt better in years. This just can't be true. Isn't there anything I can do?"

After a moment the doctor said, "Well, you might start going down the street to that new health spa and take a mud bath every day."

Excitedly Bill asked, "And that will cure me?"

"No," replied the doctor, "but it will get you used to the dirt."

Four Catholic men and a Catholic woman were having coffee. The first Catholic man tells his friends, "My son is a priest, when he walks into a room, everyone calls him 'Father'."

The second Catholic man chirps, "My son is a Bishop. When he walks into a room people call him 'Your Grace'."

The third Catholic gent says, "My son is a Cardinal.. When he enters a room everyone says 'Your Eminence'."

The fourth Catholic man then says, "My son is the Pope. When he walks into a room people call him 'Your Holiness'."

Since the lone Catholic woman was sipping her coffee in silence, the four men give her a subtle, "Well....?"

She proudly replies, "I have a daughter, slim, tall, 38D breast, 24" waist and 34" hips. When she walks into a room, people say, "Oh My God."

An old man and an old lady are getting ready for bed one night when all of a sudden the woman bursts out of the bathroom, flings open her robe and yells, "SUPER PUSSY!"

The old man looks at her and replies, "I'll have the soup."

A police officer pulls a man over for speeding. As the officer approaches the car he can see that the man is very anxious about something. "Good afternoon Sir. Do you know why I stopped you?"

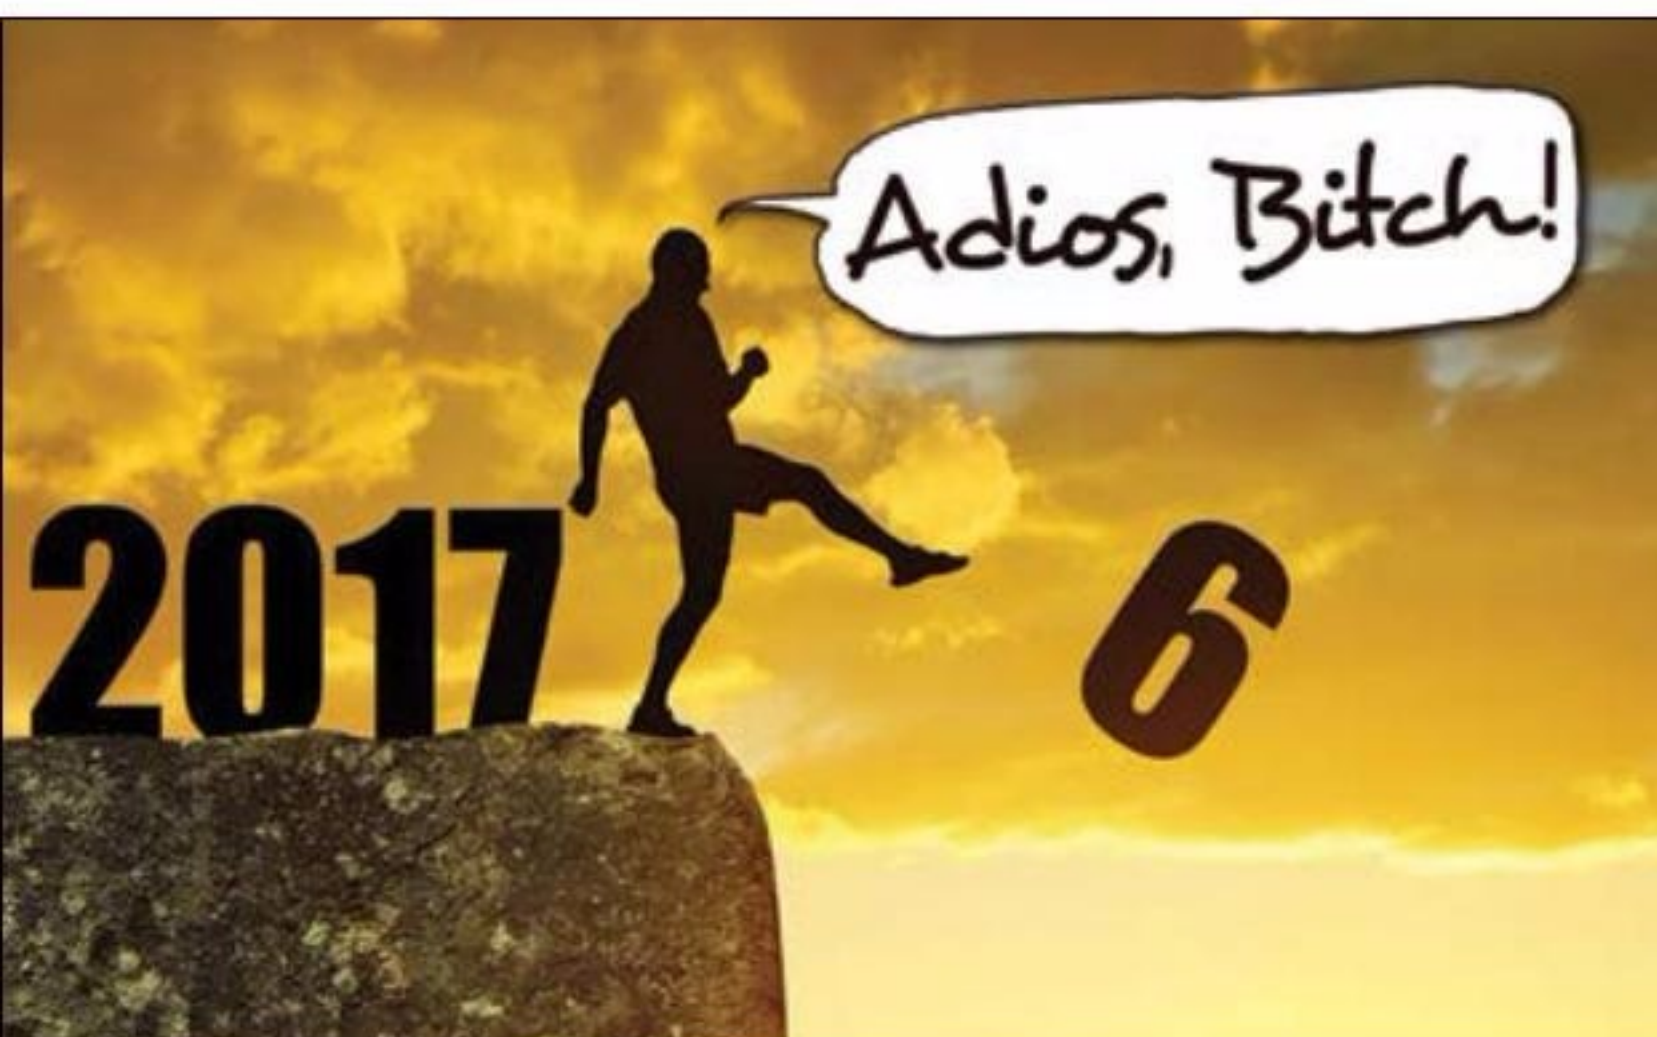

"Yes, officer... I know I was speeding -- but it is a matter of life or death."

"Oh, really? How's that?"

"There's a naked woman waiting for me at home."

"I don't see how that is a matter of life or death."

"If I don't get home before my wife does, I'm a dead man."

10 INDICATIONS OF A NEW YEAR HANGOVER

1. You get it into your head that chirping birds are the Devil's pets.
2. Trying to gain control of the situation, you continue to tell your room to, "Stay still."
3. Looking at yourself in the mirror induces the same sickening reaction as drinking a glass of fresh paint.
4. The bathroom reminds you of the fair-ground cry, "Step right up and give it whirl!"
5. You'd rather chew tacks than be exposed to sunlight.
6. You set aside an entire afternoon to spend some quality time with your toilet.
7. You replace the traditional praying on your knees with the more feasible praying in a fetal position.
8. Your catch phrase is, "Never again."
9. You could purchase a new fridge on the proceeds from recycling the bottles around your bed.
10. Your new response to "Good morning," is "Be quiet!"

ZODIAC SPOT

ARIES (MARCH 21 - APRIL 19)

This is a month for career success. Considerable progress is made; pay rises, promotions and more recognition for your professional abilities are happening. You have been active socially – and quite popular. You've been here for your friends and beloved. You've put their interests first. Nonetheless, this is starting to taper off this month. Your social goals are more or less achieved. You have been 'people pleasing' for a quite a while and now it is high time to think of number one.

GEMINI (MAY 21 - JUNE 20)

You're far away from yourself and focused on the needs of others. This is as it should be. Your way is unlikely to be the best these days. Let others seek their approach, so long as it isn't destructive. Adapt yourself to situations as best you can. Home and family are very important, but it is high time to shift your focus to the Career and your outer goals. This is the best way to serving the family right now. Important romantic or social meetings are happening. However, there is no need to rush into anything serious.

LEO (JULY 23 - AUGUST 22)

Generally spring, when the Sun is positioned in Aries, is considered the best starting energy of the year – best for launching new products or projects. But for you, the current month is very good for this. It's your ability to move forward with others that matter. You're distant from yourself but present with others. You're at the height of personal popularity. Love goes well. Continue to concentrate on the home, family and your feeling of emotional wellness. Very soon (next month in fact) you'll start to translate this emotional wellness into outer success.

LIBRA (SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 22)

Planetary power is now moving away from you and towards others. By the 24th the shift to the Western, social sector is created. Thus your period of rude independence is through with for a while. Now subjective changes are very difficult to make. Adapt yourself to situations as best you can. You're naturally a collective person – naturally a seeker of consensus – so this situation is easier for you than for most people. You kind of like it. The spouse, partner or current love seems especially helpful financially.

SAGITTARIUS (NOVEMBER 22 - DECEMBER 21)

You begin your year with the planetary power in the bottom half of your chart. Career is still very important – and successful, – but it is good to shift your energy to the home, family and your emotional wellness. You just have to balance the career with your family and emotional life. Good health is not just valuable for its own sake, but from a cosmetic perspective as well. You look good. Your sense of style is very effective and this is a delightful period – until the 24th – to buy clothing or accessories.

AQUARIUS (JANUARY 20 - FEBRUARY 18)

The month ahead is happy and prosperous. On the 20th as the Sun enters your 1st house you begin one of your yearly personal pleasure peaks. You live on a higher level. You're able to enjoy all the pleasures of the senses. Delicate appearance shines and you have more self-confidence and self-esteem. The love life seems especially favorable then too. Love pursues you. You only need to go about your daily business and it will find you soon enough. An attractive partner is a part of your persona this month, like a fashion accessory.

TAURUS (APRIL 20 - MAY 20)

You begin your year on a happy and successful note. Overall health looks excellent. Your family could be more ambitious for you than you are tantamount to yourself. Both you and the family as a whole are profitable this month. Finances need to be well, but they are more complex this month than last. Others come first. Your good happens through others and through their favor, so your social skills are more critical than your innate abilities. You seem to be more aggressive in the pursuit of love.

CANCER (JUNE 21 - JULY 22)

Your happiness is as important as the happiness of others, nonetheless, right now, it gets a back seat. If you're in a relationship, be more patient with the beloved over this period. He or she will be often temperamental. In spite of all this, love life is basically happy. The communal life and social skills are vital on a financial level. Your personal financial interest is lively, but always keeps in mind the financial interest of the other person – and put that first. There is an opportunity for business partnerships and joint ventures. Spousal support is more important than usual.

VIRGO (AUGUST 23 - SEPTEMBER 22)

Right now you're in an exceptional period for starting new projects or launching new products into the world. Both your personal and universal solar cycles are waxing. Planetary momentum is forward – there will never be more than two planets retrograde at this time. You're in a strong party period as the year begins. Cultivate your relationships and your social skills. You're enjoying your life and involved in all kinds of fun activities. For Virgo work is fun. An unemployed or underemployed Virgo is a most miserable creature.

SCORPIO (OCTOBER 23 - NOVEMBER 21)

You're in the midnight of your year and the activities of the night are more critical than the activities of the day. Night is a question of building up the forces for the next day. Outwardly we seem inactive. But inwardly there is much dynamic activity happening. Night opens the way for the next day. This is about time that handling the issues that make future career success possible – building a harmonious home and family life and getting into emotional harmony. If these are taken care of everything else will fall into place.

CAPRICORN (DECEMBER 22 - JANUARY 19)

You won't be obliged to rely on others that much. You can get it all alone if they don't approve. This is an opportunity to create conditions that please you and to have life on your terms. Later on, this will be very difficult to do. Of course, others have yet to be treated with respect. But so long as you're not harming anyone. By all means have things your own way. On the 20th, as the Sun enters your 2nd money house, you enter a yearly financial peak. There is prosperity and it will happen much more easily than it has before.

PISCES (FEBRUARY 19 - MARCH 20)

The upper half of the horoscope is dominant as the year begins. Thus you are in a tough career period. Focus on the career. Home and family issues take time to resolve themselves – Mercury. Your family planet, is retrograde from the 5th to the 25th. So you may as well concentrate on your outer goals. You're meeting people socially who open career doors for you, but Saturn in your 10th house shows that you're earning your success by sheer merit. There are romantic opportunities with people of high status and position.

TALK TO INA

RENEWAL - LETTING GO AND CHANGE

BY INA "LAUGHING WINDS" MLEKUSH M.A. M.F.C.C.
MARRIAGE & SEX COUNSELOR CERTIFIED

January 2017 - Are you ready to make the changes in your life that you have desired? Are you ready to be honest with yourself? To make those changes what do you need to do?

Ask yourself, are you happy? Are you actualizing your dreams; business, career, relationships, travel? What are your dreams? Do you still have them?

Have you settled down to a routine that no longer feeds you? Have you settled for less? Are you still excited to greet the day?

Have you learned anything new in the last few days, week, month, or season? You are never too old to learn something new.

What's on your bucket list? Do you have a bucket list? You know, the things you want to do before you die and kick the bucket.

Change is not easy. It is simple and it is not easy. Wrapping your head around what you need to focus on, what you need to let go of to make room for the new demands takes courage. If you are going to manifest your dreams, you need to prioritize them and dedicate time and energy to what you desire to accomplish.

The thought of dying without accomplishing my passions make me feel like I failed in this life time. No matter how much I have accomplished if there is one major goal that is on my plate and I have not attempted to succeed in it then I feel empty inside. I feel like I became too complacent, watched too much TV or played too much golf.

Ask yourself, "What have I given back to this earth?" "What have I given to the people of this planet that was mine to give?" Or.... has this never crossed your mind? I invite you to realize that you are an individual that has a gift this planet needs. The less you think of yourself as a unique individual the further you separate yourself from spirit and the gift that you were born to share with others.

Is this too spiritual for you? Does it put too much pressure on you to do something with your life? Do you like what you are doing with your life? You can be busy and getting nowhere. You can keep every day full with activities and yet feel unaccomplished because you are not living your dream. What are your dreams for 2017?

A friend asked me, "What do I want to be in my next life time?" I said, "An accomplished financially successful writer." She said she wanted to be a singer. I am giving her a package of voice lessons with my voice coach. Why not start now? I decided to end my 2 year career as a Radio Show Host on 1100 KFAX, Honest Talk about Sex, Relationships and Intimacy to begin now. My new focus and major priority in 2017 is to finish my book and get it published and take my articles and put them into a book for publication. I have some erotic writing I would like to publish also. Anybody want to help me? That is how you get help with your dreams. You put it out there to friends and strangers and ask for help. There are always people who would be pleased to help you. It makes us feel good when we help others.

You do not like asking for help? Do you have rationalizations going off in your head as to why it is wrong to ask for help? Maybe if you ask and others step up to help you, then you no longer have an excuse as to why you are not actualizing those hidden desires. Self-sabotage is a sneaky bed fellow.

Check in with your sexual and intimacy desires for 2017. Are you in need of adventure and sexual exploration? Join me for Chuluaqui Quodoushka Spiritual Sexuality workshops. Level 1 March 9 - 12 followed by level 2 March 16-19. Attend level 1 or both. Go to Quodoushka.org for testimonials from around the world and a description of each workshop. Call me for an interview and workshop information before registering. 623 465-9151. Ina@SpiritualSexuality.com

Explore your sexuality if you are monogamous, dating, single or celibate - meaning you self-pleasure and celebrate yourself. No matter how young or old you are the human body is meant to enjoy intimacy and passion. Are you?

Every year will fly by faster and faster as you age. Do not wait to live your life. Do not put off till tomorrow what you can do today. Take responsibility for your actions and be spiritually accountable and go for the more. That is when life gets fun...going for the more gives you energy and awakens your passion for living.

BOBO SWAE FEAT. SWAE LEE "BALL OUT THE LOT"

"Ball Out The Lot" is by SremmLife Crew member, BoBo Swae. The song, which could be a new adult club anthem, features one half of the hip-hop duo Rae Sremmurd, Swae Lee. The track's title are its opening lines with BoBo Swae talking about revisiting the club and pouring out Ace of Spades and Hennessy. But the lyrics "I love the way you shake that ass up on that pole" and "you doin' it way too good, a million dollar tip/this what you deserve" clearly talk about having a good time at the club, with a lucky lady making a serious payday by virtue of her moves. Swae Lee has a brief appearance and does the most with it including this gem of a line "at the telly smokin', don't disturb."

STITCHED UP HEART "CATCH ME WHEN I FALL"

With their debut album, Never Alone, LA-based hard rock band Stitched Up Heart finds their footing after originally being formed in 2010. "Catch Me When I Fall" is the third track of the album and opens with singer Alecia 'Mixi' Demner's vocals cutting through the heavy guitars and drums as a well-suited complement. According to Demner, the song is a call for help. In her words, it's "knowing that sometimes you need those who care about you to help you through tough times in life." This song also aims to catch a wider audience with more mainstream feel to it than other songs on the album.

THEM EVILS "UNTOLD"

A consistent drum pounding greets you for the start of "Untold," the newest single from Them Evils' third EP release. Them Evils is a rock trio formed on the shores of Huntington Beach, California. The group claims to be inspired by acts like Led Zeppelin, AC/DC, and Queens of the Stone Age and you can definitely hear those inspirations in "Untold," thanks to vocalist Jordan Griffin, who sounds like Robert Plant meeting Jack White. The second half of the song has some nifty guitar playing hinting at some of Them Evils' darker material, but the song as a whole is anything but evil. In fact, it's pretty damn good.

DESTRUCTO AND PROBLEM PROVE TO HAVE THE "WINNING" COMBINATION COLLABORATION FEATURED ON THE BRAND NEW INSTALLMENT OF STRIPJOINTSMUSIC

If there was a "hall of fame" for EDM and house music, Gary Richards—aka, Destructo—would be in it. He is a 25-year veteran of the genre, and is one of the founders of the Electric Daisy Carnival (EDC), arguably the biggest electronic music dance festival in the world. He was handpicked by legendary record producer and founder of Def Jam/Def American Recordings, Rick Rubin, to head the company's Electronic music division, where Richards would develop such acts as Lords of Acid and God Lives Underwater. He went on to form his own record labels (Nitrus Records and 1500 Records), and in 2007 launched HARD Events, a concert brand which puts on popular EDM festivals.

It was in the mid '90s that Richard adopted the "Destructo" moniker that he uses today. He is quoted as saying that the Destructo name derives from "My goal to play the hardest and most gnarly techno out there. I'd blow up the sound system and the mixer at clubs if I could. I wasn't only into Kraftwerk and Daft Punk; I loved Metallica and Black Sabbath as well. So when I performed, it was aggressive and had to be banging."

Over the past two decades, Destructo has boasted successful collaborations with a wide variety of acts ranging from Warren G to Depeche Mode to White Zombie. Destructo's latest project is a collaboration with Problem titled "Winning," which is featured on the newest installment of StripJoints (StripJointsMusic.com), available for free download to adult nightclub DJs. ED Publications' Club Bulletin had the chance to get some insight from Destructo on "Winning" and what it was like to collaborate with the famed West-Coast rapper.

ED PUB: What was it like to collaborate with Problem on the track "Winning"? What provided the inspiration for the music and the lyrics?

DESTRUCTO: I provided the music and he provided the lyrics. He was like, "I got a big one for you." Problem came through super strong: "Haters I don't hear, I am to busy winning" really is a solid hook.

ED PUB: The song "Winning" is being promoted to thousands of adult nightclub DJs across the country, through our magazine (ED Publications' Club Bulletin) and through StripJointsMusic.com. If a DJ hasn't heard this song yet, why should they check it or add it to their regular rotation?

DESTRUCTO: Because it is different the way it switches back and forth from rap to house and back. It will make you move!

ED PUB: You've collaborated with, and have done remixes for, a varied group of rappers and other artists. Do you have a "dream" collaboration? And what has been your favorite collaboration or remix that you've done?

DESTRUCTO: There are too many to name, but Dr. Dre is my hero. As far as my favorite collab, they all have been solid from YG and Ty Dolla to Pusha T and Snoop. I think my favorite remix is Warren G "Regulate."

ED PUB: Some adult club DJs have embraced house and EDM music, while others are simply not fans of the genre and don't feel it's the right style of music for their customer base (many of which may be men ages 35-55). In your opinion, what are some preconceived notions or stereotypes about house music and/or EDM that you could dispel?

DESTRUCTO: There are two kinds of music—the good shit and that other shit. Either you feel it or not. I think my music has the funk and hopefully it feels right for these clubs

ED PUB: Where do you see house music headed in the next five years? Will it remain as popular as it's been, will it morph into something else?

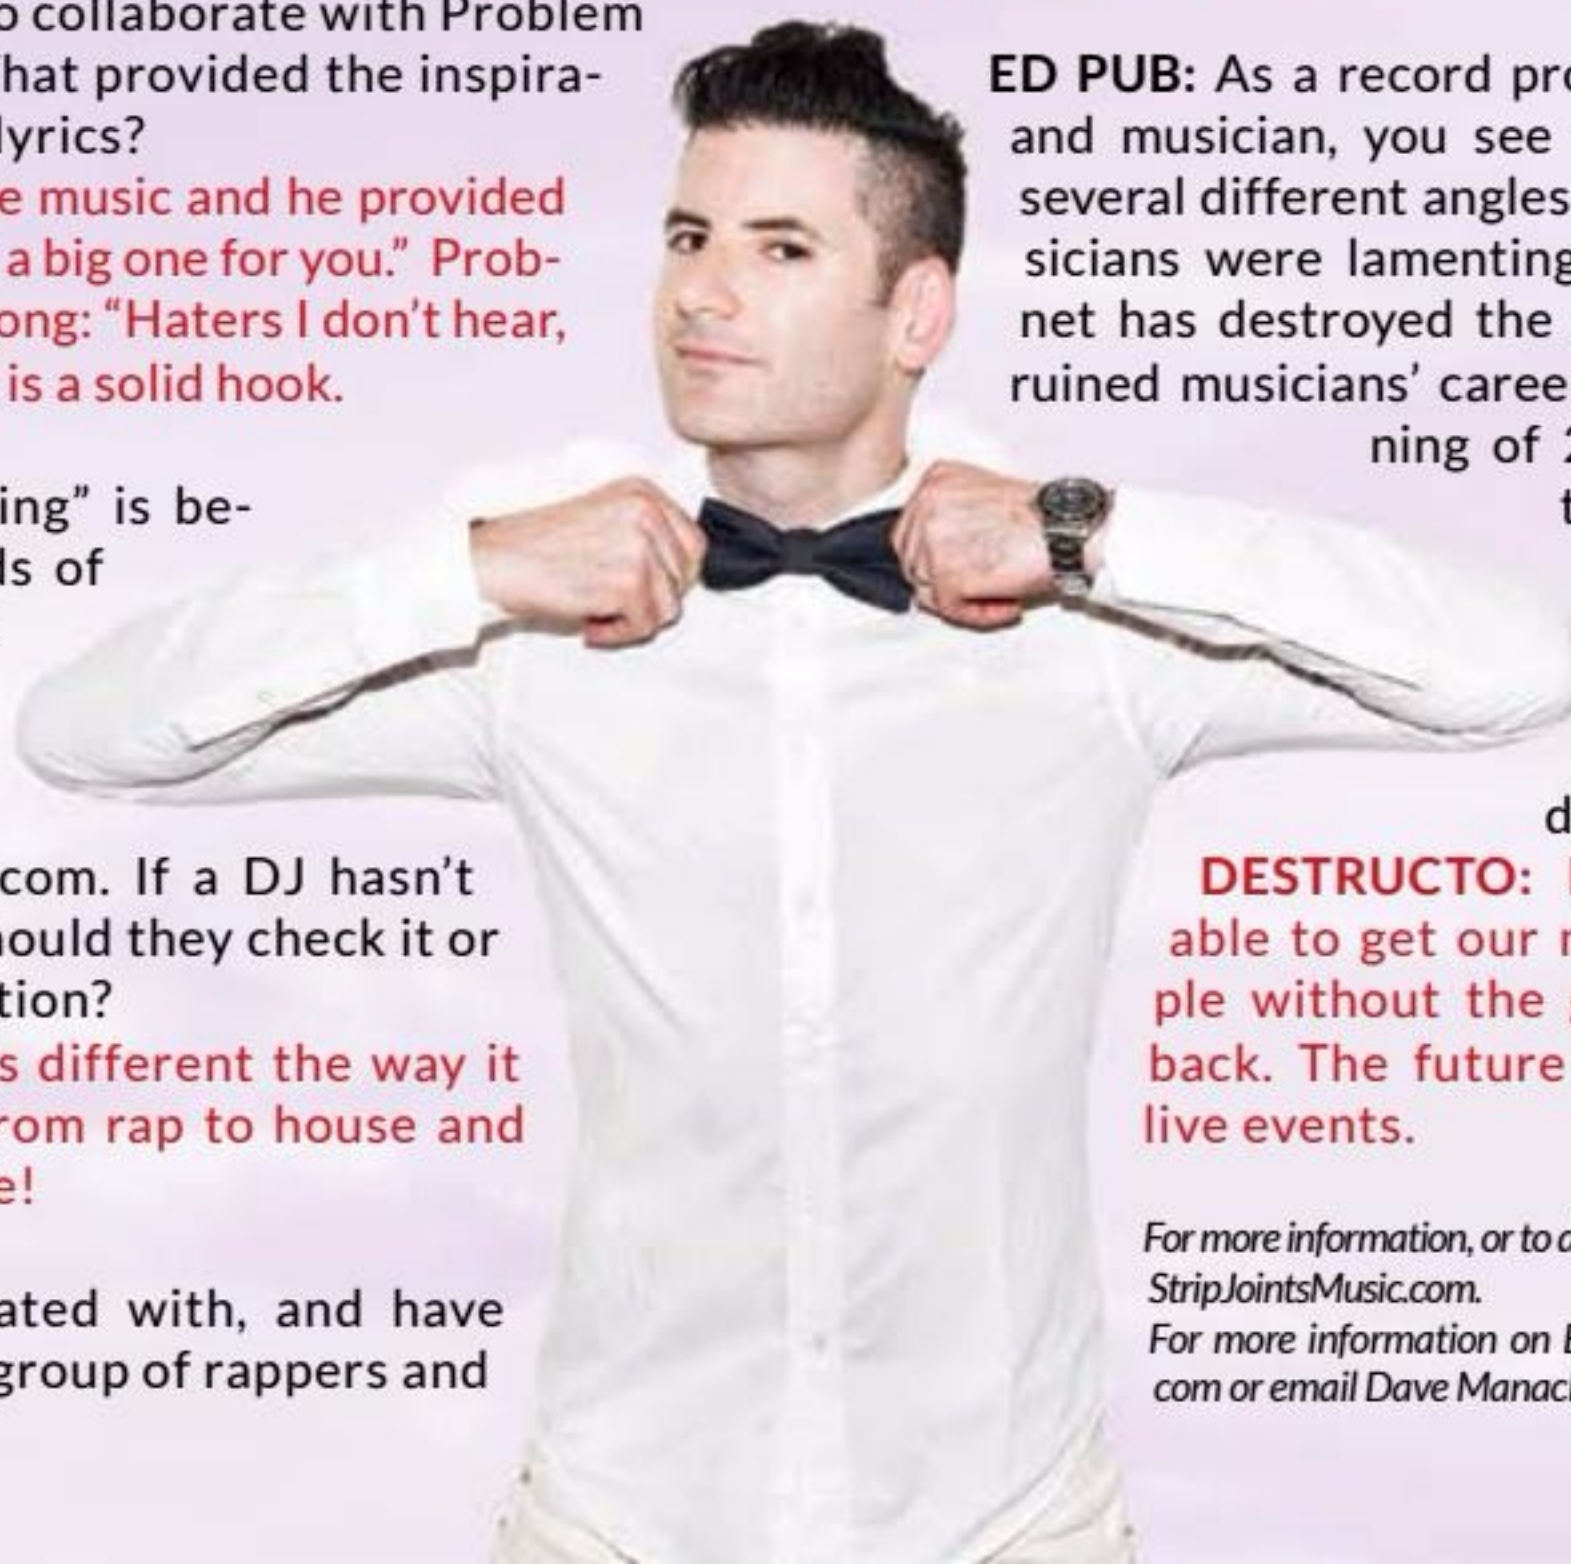

DESTRUCTO: Dance music is here to stay for life. It is always morphing into different things and that is good.

ED PUB: As a record producer, concert promoter and musician, you see the music industry from several different angles. Ten years ago, many musicians were lamenting the fact that the internet has destroyed the music business, and thus ruined musicians' careers. As we near the beginning of 2017, do you see the internet (including illegal music downloading and streaming services like Spotify) as something that helps the music industry, hurts it, or both?

DESTRUCTO: It helps 100%. We are able to get our music to millions of people without the gate keepers holding us back. The future is bright for music and live events.

THE STORY SPOT

MANDY'S AWAKENING

"DAMN!"

The curse was heartfelt. Having just woken up I could see the time was just four minutes past three in the morning. Remembering I had deliberately unset my "Do Not Disturb" feature did nothing to help being woken up by the incoming text at such an ungodly hour. Sighing to myself, I leaned over, grabbed my phone and looked to see who had sent me a spam text. I cheered up a little to find it was from Mandy.

Mandy, the 'old friend,' had turned out to be a sexy and extremely enthusiastic lover the previous weekend. Chuckling inwardly I recalled just how much I, no, "we" had woken her inner-self from a long period of loveless inaction. We had literally fucked ourselves to a standstill. Boy! How unexpected and delightful that had been. At my age I thanked the Lord's of the Universe responsible for the discovery of a certain little blue pill.

I turned back to the text message and opened it to read, "Hello lover are you still awake?"

Still blinking the sleep from my eyes I replied, "Not asleep now =)".

The answer came back very quickly, "Me neither. Can I come 'round?"

My answer didn't take much thinking about, "Of course - I'll put the coffee on."

I started getting out of bed to do just that. She lived about half an hour away and I thought I had plenty of time to get the coffee pot on and then freshen up. First thing is first, I opened the drawer of my nightstand and swallowed another of those little blue pills.

Except... As my feet hit the floor the front door bell rang. Cursing again, and as I was still naked I pulled a bath-robe on, and went down to see who was at the door. Checking through the peep-hole I was startled to see Mandy stood outside. Without putting the lights on I opened the door and she slipped in. Threw her coat off and standing naked in front of me went, "Ta-daa!" Then grabbed my robe and unwrapped me like a present.

Now older I may be, but action like that does still tend to attract my full attention and turn me on... Very quickly.

"He" went from "interested" to "standing at full attention" in a lot less than it takes to read that sentence, especially as a cold hand was now caressing both him and the rest of the family jewels.

An aside crosses my mind at this juncture, so I'll pose a question. Guys, why is it that a cold hand placed anywhere other than your wedding tackle makes you shudder and complain? Placed on both cock and balls it does tend to bring things to 'full mast' very, very quickly. Or maybe it's just my anatomy that's suspect?

No matter, darling Mandy, pleased as she was at not just my readiness, but also my willingness to play was now giving me the pleasure and indulgence of a deep-throat final warm up. She muttered, "He's ready." Then turning around she put her hands on the stairs and bent forward to let me take her from behind. Her sigh as I sank slowly and deeply all the way in was masked by the sound of pleasure that I gave. Her warmth gave way to heat as she welcomed my cock into her willing and ready depths. I grasped and held her hips as I was entering her. Now I changed grip moving my hands around to her front and fondling her full, pendulous breasts as I half leaned over her. In the cold air her nipples were hard and aroused.

Squeezing them I slid almost out and then all the way back in as she clenched her muscles on me. The effect on both of us was to make us realise that this was not going to be a long drawn out coupling and I upped the pace. A lot.

Mandy moaned quietly as I took her hard and fast. Pushing us both towards a peak that arrived as suddenly and rapidly as we now both desired. Once, pushing hard and sending a burst of spunk so deep, mauling her breasts as I did so. Twice and a squishy wet second burst, then one last deep, slushy dribble of desire.

As I eased back and my rapidly diminishing cock slid from her pussy, she called, "All mine, on your back!" And pushed me down onto the hall rug. She kneeled as she sank her lips over my cock to suck and clean him of our joint juices.

Wet and satiated we rolled apart, still breathing heavily from our exertions.

I spoke first. "Jeez Babe, what brought that on?"

Mandy replied, "Couldn't sleep, so I played a little. That made me horny and worse so I wondered if you were alone. Decided to take a chance and thought I might have a little fun at the same time. Coasted down the hill so you wouldn't hear me arrive. Parked outside the house and then sent the text. When you said 'Yes' I was already on the porch outside the front door so all I had to do was ring the bell. I just hoped you were on your own without visitors."

My turn to laugh as I said, "You're lucky I was! But now it's shower time. Coming?"

We went to my bath room grabbing a couple of hot towels from the rail on the way. We turned the waterfall shower on and when it was hot enough went in.

"My turn first." I soaped and massaged her beautiful, full breasts, and then her back before kneeling and as she put a foot on my thigh cleaned and washed her sweet hairless, naked pussy.

"That's new, I like," I said, testing out the smoothness with my tongue after she rinsed.

"Just for you lover. I'm changing, becoming a new person. A new outlook. I had become a frumpy, staid old-maid with Garry. That's all he wanted out of me, that and being his damned housekeeper. You've brought a new, much happier me back to life. I'm never going back to those times. He's already moved out. Well... I kicked him out. Most people don't, didn't know that we were never formally married. That and the house was only in my name. I owned it and I'm glad we never got around to changing that."

"No matter, your turn now," and she had me stand up and finished washing the soap off my back before soaping my half-hard cock and the lovely handful of balls she had in her other hand.

Inevitably and now with the help of sufficient time for the little blue-one to now properly kick in, he hardened and became ready under her willing grasp. "Not here," she said.

So we turned the water off, got out and dried each other off before she grabbed my hand and led me down the landing into the only lit room and what she hoped was my bedroom. She was right. Pushing me onto the bed she followed and kneeling between my legs gently took my balls, one at a time into her mouth. Any lingering doubt about my cocks ability to return to hardness was forgotten. She held him, licked him, made love to him. She gently slid the skin of his crown back and licked and suckled round the rim of his corona. Such sweet bliss.

Then again she knelt with her legs under my arms and 'queened' me with an already squishy, juicy cunt as she carried on her sword swallowing act.

Heaven! I adore the taste and aroma from a pussy that's telling me it's ready for the next stage. This time she wanted to be on-top. I wasn't about to complain about what is my favorite position. Obliging he stood straight, proud and willing and all Mandy did was to slowly drop down until the crown was at her lips. She lowered a tiny bit more and I felt his angry, hot tip press against her juicy, wet lips. She slowly, oh so teasingly slowly, took the crown inside her. That she was ready to take his girth and length was beyond dispute as she eased him into her wetness and her juices oozed out around him. All the way. Deep. Touching her furthest depths. Her innermost sanctuary.

We both groaned at the wonderful feelings now aroused within us. She leaned forward and her pendulous breasts and wonderful nipples, dangled in my face begging to be pleased. It would have been rude not to have done so, so I suckled on them. Hard! Knowing that she would feel it deep inside and yet again I was rewarded by the muscle clench I so loved. This time she played a new trick on me. Without moving she clenched and unclenched her muscles, using them to milk me. My rapid and sudden cumming took me by surprise and was intense as it was unexpected and she was screaming, "YES! YES!"

The intensity was such that I actually blacked out for a little while after our mutual orgasms. A little while later I awoke my lovely Mandy still laying on top of me. My cock, still feeling the effects of my little blue helper, better than half hard and still inside and she, breathing slowly and gently, asleep. I pulled the comforter around us both and went back to sleep myself.

My last thoughts were that the new day had started pretty damn well, bring on the morning...
